Susan Ball Is Called One of Year's Most Beautiful Brides; No Crutches

Santa Barbara, Calif., April 12 (AP)—Susan Ball and Dick Long, whose marriage climaxed Hollywood's nicest love story, today start their honeymoon with a leisurely drive up the California coast.

The striking brunette actress, who lost her right leg to cancer in January, made one of the year's most beautiful brides as she and the young actor were wed yesterday at El Montecito Presbyterian Church.

The wedding was intensely dramatic, because everyone expected the bride to come down the aisle on crutches. But Susan had

Ulster Unemployment Drops 21 Per Cent; Payments Fewer

Unemployment in the area, which in February reached its highest level since the winter of 1949-50, dropped 21 per cent in March as outdoor workers returned to employment.

The first week in April showed a further decline in the number of unemployed.

An average of 1,290 persons drew unemployment insurance benefit payments at the Kingston office each week in March, compard to a weekly average of 1,633 in February, according to the monthly report of the State Labor Department's Division of Placement and Unemployment Insurance.

Payments at the Kingston office the first week in April totaled 982, the report showed.

The drop of 343 persons from the rolls of the unemployed between February and March, and the further drop of 308 by the end of the first week in April was attributed mostly to the resumption of activity in local brickyards, building and construction projects and other seasonal jobs.

The Ellenville branch office accounted for an additional 294 weekly unemployment insurance payments in March, a decline of 47 from February. Payments at that branch the first week of this month totaled 260.

Included in the Kingston count are about 200 Saugerties residents. The figure varies from week to week due to intermittent employment in the needle trade industries.

About 300 of the recipients of unemployment insurance benefits in March were persons unemployed for less than a full week and who, therefore, received only partial benefits.

Unemployed building and construction workers accounted for 21 per cent of the total benefit recipients in March, compared to 28 per cent of the February total. In March, only seven per cent of the unemployed were stone and clay

GOP Heads Back Dewey As Nominee

Poll Shows Governor Overwhelming Choice of Those Who Reply to Inquiry

By HENRY LEADER
(First of Two Articles)

Albany, April 12 (AP)—Republican county chairmen gave added force today to pressure on Gov. Dewey to run again, whether he wants to or not.

An Associated Press poll of the state's 62 county leaders showed that Dewey was the overwhelming choice of those who responded.

The leaders, many of whom will be convention delegates, were asked to designate their first three preferences, in order, for the GOP gubernatorial nomination.

Thirty-five took part in the mail poll. All sections of the state were represented. Thirty-three, or more than half of all the county leaders, named Dewey as their first choice. Two put U. S. Sen. Irving M. Ives of Norwich at the top.

Comments of the chairmen generally indicated they believed Dewey was the party's best bet to win—on his record as an administrator and as a vote-getter.

To Announce 4th Term

Dewey said he will announce this spring whether he will seek a fourth term. It is regarded among political observers as a foregone conclusion that he can have the nomination without opposition.

A draft-Dewey movement appears to be getting under way. "Draft Dewey" buttons were circulated among Republican legislators on the last day of the 1954 session. And the executive committee of the Suffolk County Republican Committee has urged that Dewey be named again.

In the AP poll, five chairmen who listed Dewey as their first choice put him down also as their second and third choices. In addition, the governor was the third choice of a chairman who preferred Ives for the nomination.

All 62 leaders were told they need not sign their names, but most of them did. All were assured that in no event would they be identified in connection with their selections.

Ives was the second choice of 17 chairmen and the third choice of four.

Was Second Choice

Assembly Speaker Oswald D. Heck of Schenectady, who has been mentioned for the nomination for lieutenant governor, was the second choice of two county leaders and the third choice of four.

One chairman made State Comptroller J. Raymond McGovern of New Rochelle his second choice for the gubernatorial nomination; five made him their third selection.

U. S. Attorney General Herbert Brownell Jr., received one second and one third choice listing.

Rep. W. Sterling Cole of Bath, chairman of the joint congressional committee on atomic energy, received one mention — a second choice.

Frank C. Moore of Kenmore, former lieutenant governor, was the second choice of two chairmen and the third pick of two others.

State Chairman Dean P. Taylor of Troy, Walter J. Mahoney of Buffalo, Senate majority leader,

VA Hospitals to Measure Heart and Lung Functions

For the first time in medical history, Veterans Administration hospitals will measure heart and lung function through cooperative research to provide more accurate standards for diagnosing and treating heart and lung diseases, F. William Sheehan, officer in charge, Veterans Administration, 286 Fair street, this city, announced today.

Once satisfactory normal standards have been established, VA will go on to measure and interpret abnormal heart and lung function.

These two studies, Sheehan said, will provide medical and scientific contributions of considerable importance to VA and to the medical world at large.

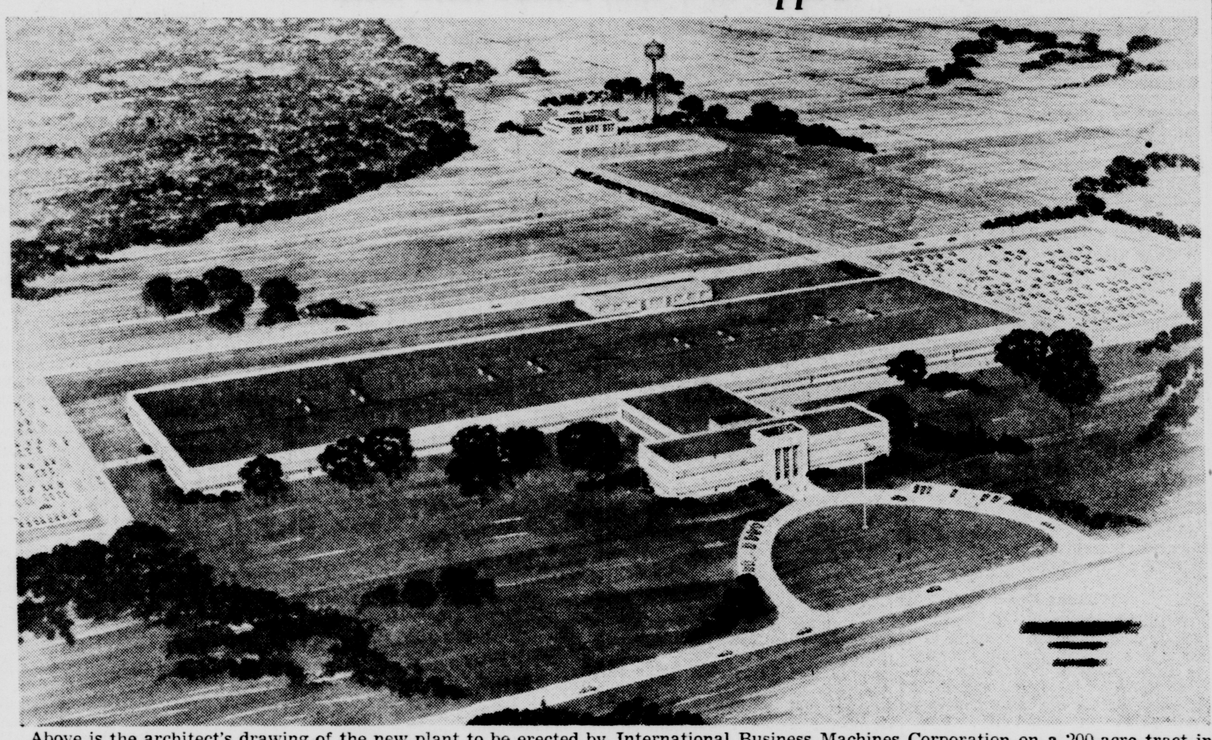

In VA, such standards are needed not only for diagnosing and treating such cases, but also to assist in rating heart and lung diseases for service-connected requirements. VA is in a position to conduct this research because it has the nation's largest group of hospitalized patients with heart and lung disease susceptible to follow-up. Moreover, VA has a hard core of well trained investigators in this field, with modern laboratories equipped to carry out such studies.

The studies will begin with measurement of lung function and conclude with measurement of heart function. The massive results expected to come from the studies will be analyzed statistically to develop the acceptable standards needed.

All Males 21 to 25 Are to Be Called To Fight Vietminh

Mobilization Order Is First in Seven-Year War —Another Drive Repulsed

Saigon, Indochina, April 12 (AP)—Viet Nam's new war cabinet decreed total mobilization today of all its male citizens between 21 and 25 to fight the Communist-dominated Vietminh rebels.

Meeting for the first time since its creation Saturday by Chief of State Bao Dai, Premier Prince Buu Loc and his two cabinet ministers ordered the call-up by May 15. It was not immediately announced how many of the 13 to 15 million Vietnamese in the French-defended zones would be affected by the order.

It was the first time in the exhausting seven-year Indochina War that Viet Nam had called its young men in bulk into the armed forces. Previously the Vietnamese were drafted individually, evasions were numerous and the French force of French, North Africans and Foreign Legionnaires has carried the brunt of the attack.

Dulles Urges Britain Give Warning on Asia

Secretary Would Patch Up Big 3 Rift on Policy — Seek Compromise

London, April 11 (AP)—Secretary of State John Foster Dulles, seeking to patch up a Big Three rift over Southeast Asian policy, urged Britain today to join in an early western warning intended to head off Communist seizure of Indochina.

Informants said Dulles told British Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden the western allies must show a united front on Asian affairs at the Geneva conference and bargain from strength. Both Indochina and Korea are up for negotiation at Geneva beginning April 26. Soviet Russia and Red China will be sitting in.

Dulles and Eden, who met at the British foreign office, appeared to be searching for a compromise on the timing of the Washington proposal for a warning to Red China to keep hands off southeast Asia. Paris and London want to postpone any gesture which could be interpreted as a strong arm move, fearing it would narrow the already slim chances of negotiating an Indochina settlement at Geneva.

Seeks Declaration

Dulles is striving to get British backing for a pre-Geneva declaration before he flies to Paris tomorrow to persuade the even more reluctant French.

Official sources said Dulles feels a common declaration right now will help the French to maintain a firm position at Geneva against any compromise that might eventually lose Indochina to the Reds.

The French and British are ready to join in warning the

Reade Tells Plans For B'way Theatre

Entire Facade to Be Given Colonial Appearance; Interior Changes

Details on the planned renovation of Reade's Broadway Theatre in Kingston were outlined Saturday afternoon by Walter Reade, Jr., in a conference with the theatre managers and reporters at the theatre.

The first public announcement that the Broadway will be changed architecturally to give it a Georgian-Colonial type front was made last Tuesday night when permission was received from the Common Council to install columns on the sidewalk in front of the theatre building.

Reade explained that the entire front of the building will be given a Colonial appearance, with red brick facing, white trim and four white columns, and will be somewhat similar in appearance, on a smaller scale, to the Governor Clinton Hotel.

$125 Taken From City Gas Station

Local police were notified at 7:48 a. m., today that the Goldfarb gas station at 575 Broadway had been entered and about $125 in cash was taken.

Officers Gerald Every and George Dougherty investigated and reported that entrance was gained by the breaking of a window. The money represented receipts from weekend business, the report said. Detectives were assigned to continue the investigation.

Less serious thefts at other gas stations were reported within recent weeks and in one several days ago a coin telephone was ripped from the wall in a station on O'Neil street.

Reports Gas Siphoned

Lawrence McHugh, of 24 Elizabeth street, reported to police headquarters at 1:32 p. m., Sunday that 12 gallons of gas had been siphoned from his car which he had left parked at the rear of his home.

A report at 4:10 p. m., Saturday said several boys had broken into a building at 37 Mill street. Officer Anthony Turck was assigned to investigate, and seven boys were brought to police headquarters where their names were taken and they were sent home. Nothing was reported missing.

St. Thomas, Ont., April 12 (AP)—A New York Central train made flying wreckage of a U. S. university professor's station wagon near here yesterday, but the 58-year-old woman, her niece and her $7,000 cello escaped injury.

Dr. Susanne K. Langer, of Hurley, N. Y., and Ann Arbor, Mich., told police she skidded while crossing the railroad tracks 10 miles west of here in a heavy rain. Her wheels caught on the rails and, with the 84-car train heading for her, she could go neither backward nor forward.

The woman and her niece, Susanne Dunbar, of Lomontville, N. Y., daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Dunbar, of that community, dragged out the cello, then ran along the tracks to flag the train.

Dr. Langer said the train merely whistled, plowed into the automobile, and flipped it into the air. It came down 85 feet away, a wreck.

Dr. Langer is visiting professor of philosophy at the University of Michigan; she maintains a residence at Hurley, N. Y. Miss Dunbar is a senior at the university and is a graduate of Kingston, N. Y., High School.

Banks Can Join Non-Profit Group For Trust Funds

Towns, Counties Get Right to Buy Single Policies for Villages, Fire Districts

Albany, April 12 (AP) — Gov. Dewey has signed legislation permitting banks to join in a non-profit corporation—the Mutual Trust Investment Co.—for management and investment of trust funds.

The governor signed the measure yesterday and in a memorandum stated that the company would provide "sound investment and the advantages of diversification for modest trust funds." Investments from any one trust fund will be limited to $100,000.

Dewey signed two bills Saturday that authorized towns and counties to buy single insurance policies for all villages and fire districts within their borders to provide benefits to injured firemen.

He vetoed two measures: One that would have required windshield defrosters on all automobiles built after Jan. 1, 1957 and registered in New York state and another that would have required all motorists to see that their brakes measures up to standards spelled out in the bill.

Vetoes Measure

Today, the governor vetoed a bill that would have authorized towns to pay expenses for peace justices attending magistrates meetings or schools in their respective counties or in adjoining counties. The governor said the bill was unnecessary, and that the Association of Towns had advised him that provisions of the general municipal law were adequate to handle the payments.

Dewey also vetoed a bill that would have authorized the Jones Beach State Parkway Authority

11 Cities Are Affected By Equalization Changes

Albany, April 12 (AP)—Cuts in state equalization rates today gave 11 more cities power to increase their debt ceilings. Five of them were authorized to raise real estate taxes.

The State Board of Equalization and Assessment announced new rates for the cities and 31 school districts within them. Changes in taxing and borrowing power will become effective in the next fiscal year in each locality.

To taxpayers in five cities — Beacon, Glen Cove, Rye, Saratoga Springs and Watervliet — the changes will mean that their city tax bills can be raised without a change in assessments on their property. Each city government also will be able to borrow more money without going over its constitutional debt limit.

In the other six cities—Fulton, Hornell, Hudson, Oneida, Oneonta and Tonawanda—the changes will mean that the city governments can borrow more money.

But those six cities will not be able to increase tax bills without increasing realty assessments, because the charter of each contains a tax limit that takes the place of the limit spelled out for other cities in the state constitution.

In all 31 school districts, the school boards will be able to increase the dollars-and-cents amounts of taxes and add to their debts independently of a change in present real property assessments.

Each of the new rates announced today showed a drop

Factory Is To Be 1,000 Feet by 250

No Estimate of Number of Employes Given—Work Is Started at Bowlatorium

International Business Machines Corporation today announced that contracts have been awarded for the construction of the firm's new Kingston plant.

The 320,000 square foot building is planned for occupancy in the spring of 1955. Construction will begin almost immediately, firm officials indicated.

Turner Construction Corporation of New York city and the G. D. Campbell Building Company, Inc., of Poughkeepsie have been named general contractors.

The building, designed by Giffels and Vallet, Inc., architects, of Detroit, Mich., is patterned after existing IBM factory buildings.

1,000 Feet Long

The new plant will be 1,000 feet long and 250 feet wide. It will be of steel frame construction with side walls of brick and glass block.

The office, engineering and administration building, of two-story design, will be connected with the manufacturing building by a wing to be used as an employe cafeteria. A boiler house will be constructed at some distance from the main plant.

IBM plans call for the provision of the plant's own modern sewerage and waste treatment plant. Water will be purchased from the city of Kingston.

First occupancy of the building is planned for the spring of 1955 and will "progress gradually" throughout the year.

No Employment Estimate

No new estimate of the number to be employed at the Kingston plant was made by IBM today, but when the original announcement was made on Nov. 7, William J. Mair, vice president of the corporation, said he "hoped" the plant would eventually be commensurate with the Poughkeepsie plant, which now employs more than 7,800 persons.

Following the announcement of IBM's decision to erect a plant at Kingston, the corporation leased the former Ruzzo Bowlatorium on Grand Street for interim operations. Approximately 40 persons were scheduled to report for work there today. Those selected for the assignment were residents of Kingston and vicinity who have been employed at the IBM Poughkeepsie plant for some time.

It is expected that the work force at the Grand street plant will grow to 175 by the end of the year.

The group working at the Grand street plant is in charge of I. P. Maurer, a native of Port Ewen who has been employed at IBM for six years.

In Town of Ulster

The site on which the new plant will be erected consists of approximately 200 acres of land in the town of Ulster a mile north of the Kingston city limits. It includes the former Kingston-Ulster Airport, the farm of Myron Boice, Sr., and Myron Boice, Jr., and smaller tracts of adjoining land.

IBM announced today that the G. D. Campbell Building Company of Poughkeepsie has been awarded a contract for the construction of a 60,000 square-foot addition to be located at the northwest section of the firm's present Poughkeepsie plant. The addition is being constructed to provide needed manufacturing space and will not affect the present employment level, IBM said.

Boats Are Radioactive

Tokyo, April 12 (AP)—Several fishing boats cruising in the area of the Marshall Islands hydrogen bomb tests last month have returned to Japan in the past three days wtih slight radioactivity. They were not considered endangered, however. Japanese scientists speculate that water currents are carrying the radioactivity to the boats.

Treasury Receipts

Washington, April 12 (AP)—The cash position of the treasury April 8: Balance, $5,491,131,420.69; deposits fiscal year July 1, $53,800,374,487.98; withdrawals fiscal year, $55,358,299,359.63; total debt (x), $270,015,986,039.93; gold assets, $21,965,557,649.25.

GOP Heads Back Dewey As Nominee

Poll Shows Governor Overwhelming Choice of Those Who Reply to Inquiry

Albany, April 12 (AP)—Republican county chairmen gave added force today to pressure on Gov. Dewey to run again, whether he wants to or not.

An Associated Press poll of the state's 62 county leaders showed that Dewey was the overwhelming choice of those who responded.

Comments of the chairmen generally indicated they believed Dewey was the party's best bet to win—on his record as an administrator and as a vote-getter.

All 62 leaders were told they need not sign their names, but most of them did. All were assured that in no event would they be identified in connection with their selections.

He vetoed two measures: One that would have required windshield defrosters on all automobiles built after Jan. 1, 1957 and registered in New York state and another that would have required all motorists to see that their brakes measures up to standards spelled out in the bill.

Vetoes Measure

Today, the governor vetoed a bill that would have authorized towns to pay expenses for peace justices attending magistrates meetings or schools in their respective counties or in adjoining counties. The governor said the bill was unnecessary, and that the Association of Towns had advised him that provisions of the general municipal law were adequate to handle the payments.

Dewey also vetoed a bill that would have authorized the Jones Beach State Parkway Authority

11 Cities Are Affected By Equalization Changes

Albany, April 12 (AP)—Cuts in state equalization rates today gave 11 more cities power to increase their debt ceilings. Five of them were authorized to raise real estate taxes.

The State Board of Equalization and Assessment announced new rates for the cities and 31 school districts within them. Changes in taxing and borrowing power will become effective in the next fiscal year in each locality.

To taxpayers in five cities — Beacon, Glen Cove, Rye, Saratoga Springs and Watervliet — the changes will mean that their city tax bills can be raised without a change in assessments on their property. Each city government also will be able to borrow more money without going over its constitutional debt limit.

In the other six cities—Fulton, Hornell, Hudson, Oneida, Oneonta and Tonawanda—the changes will mean that the city governments can borrow more money.

But those six cities will not be able to increase tax bills without increasing realty assessments, because the charter of each contains a tax limit that takes the place of the limit spelled out for other cities in the state constitution.

In all 31 school districts, the school boards will be able to increase the dollars-and-cents amounts of taxes and add to their debts independently of a change in present real property assessments.

Each of the new rates announced today showed a drop

Factory Is To Be 1,000 Feet by 250

No Estimate of Number of Employes Given—Work Is Started at Bowlatorium

International Business Machines Corporation today announced that contracts have been awarded for the construction of the firm's new Kingston plant.

The 320,000 square foot building is planned for occupancy in the spring of 1955. Construction will begin almost immediately, firm officials indicated.

Turner Construction Corporation of New York city and the G. D. Campbell Building Company, Inc., of Poughkeepsie have been named general contractors.

The building, designed by Giffels and Vallet, Inc., architects, of Detroit, Mich., is patterned after existing IBM factory buildings.

1,000 Feet Long

The new plant will be 1,000 feet long and 250 feet wide. It will be of steel frame construction with side walls of brick and glass block.

The office, engineering and administration building, of two-story design, will be connected with the manufacturing building by a wing to be used as an employe cafeteria. A boiler house will be constructed at some distance from the main plant.

IBM plans call for the provision of the plant's own modern sewerage and waste treatment plant. Water will be purchased from the city of Kingston.

First occupancy of the building is planned for the spring of 1955 and will "progress gradually" throughout the year.

No Employment Estimate

No new estimate of the number to be employed at the Kingston plant was made by IBM today, but when the original announcement was made on Nov. 7, William J. Mair, vice president of the corporation, said he "hoped" the plant would eventually be commensurate with the Poughkeepsie plant, which now employs more than 7,800 persons.

Following the announcement of IBM's decision to erect a plant at Kingston, the corporation leased the former Ruzzo Bowlatorium on Grand street for interim operations. Approximately 40 persons were scheduled to report for work there today. Those selected for the assignment were residents of Kingston and vicinity who have been employed at the IBM Poughkeepsie plant for some time.

It is expected that the work force at the Grand street plant will grow to 175 by the end of the year.

The group working at the Grand street plant is in charge of I. P. Maurer, a native of Port Ewen who has been employed at IBM for six years.

In Town of Ulster

The site on which the new plant will be erected consists of approximately 200 acres of land in the town of Ulster a mile north of the Kingston city limits. It includes the former Kingston-Ulster Airport, the farm of Myron Boice, Sr., and Myron Boice, Jr., and smaller tracts of adjoining land.

IBM announced today that the G. D. Campbell Building Company of Poughkeepsie has been awarded a contract for the construction of a 60,000 square-foot addition to be located at the northwest section of the firm's present Poughkeepsie plant. The addition is being constructed to provide needed manufacturing space and will not affect the present employment level, IBM said.

C of C Will Map Membership Drive Plans on Tuesday

The Board of Directors of the Kingston Chamber of Commerce will make final plans for the annual business meeting and the membership campaign at their regular meeting Tuesday night.

John H. Haulenbeek, chairman of the membership committee, will submit a comprehensive plan as drafted by a planning committee of which J. Ellis Briggs and George Silkworth are also members. The fiscal year starts May 1 and a goal for 1954-55 memberships also will be established.

Annual Meeting April 21

The annual membership business meeting April 21 will be unusually important. Members will vote on changing the corporate name to the Kingston Area Chamber of Commerce, Inc. Members who cannot get to the meeting are being asked to return the proxy form enclosed with the meeting notice because a majority of the members must vote on the proposal. The outside speakers on the subject of equalization rates and assessments are attracting a great deal of interest.

Although the appointment of several committees have been approved since the first of the calendar year, the full term of all permanent committees starts with the annual April business meeeting. Therefore, the directors tomorrow night will appoint or re-appoint all committees for the coming year.

Because of the importance of the meeting, Chamber President N. Jansen Fowler urges that all directors attend the meeting tomorrow which will be held in the Governor Clinton Hotel starting at 7:30 p. m.

Griswold Dies Of Heart Attack

Washington, April 12 (AP)—Sen. Dwight P. Griswold (R-Neb.), three times governor of his state and former director of the American aid mission to Greece, died early today following a heart attack. He was 60.

Death, attributed to a coronary occlusion, came shortly after midnight at the naval hospital at suburban Bethesda, Md. Mrs. Griswold was at the senator's bedside.

Griswold had been in the Senate since January 1953. He was elected to fill out two years remaining in the term of the late Sen. Kenneth S. Wherry. He had made no public announcement as to whether he planned to seek re-election this fall, but had told friends he expected to be a candidate.

Newburgh Youth Is Hurt Sunday When Car, Truck Collide

Ronald Kimmenau, 17, of 41 Roe street, Newburgh, was taken to St. Luke's Hospital, Newburgh, Sunday afternoon suffering from abrasions and a concussion sustained in a collision between his two-door sedan and a milk truck on Route 208 about two miles north of Wallkill, according to Highland State Police.

His condition was reported "good" this morning by hospital authorities.

Troopers said Kimmenau, traveling north, was attempting to pass three cars going up a hill when the accident occurred. They reported that the highway is only two lanes wide.

Tanker Fully Loaded

The tanker, fully loaded, was descending the hill, according to troopers, and attempted to pull off to the right to avoid collision. The left front ends of the two vehicles met and the truck, owned by the Marcus Trucking Company of Monroe, went down an embankment and ended up in a small stream. The driver of the truck, Clyde Burton Lane, 22, of Bearsville, was treated for shock by a local physician, troopers said.

According to the state police report, both vehicles suffered "total damage." The accident was reported at 3:10 p. m.

Says Cause Not Found

New York, April 12 (AP)—The American Cancer Society reports that deaths from lung cancer in men have risen 500 per cent in the past 20 years but it says science has not discovered the cause. In its annual report yesterday the society said it "takes the position that the causes of this rise have not yet been demonstrated scientifically." "Perhaps the best way to express the society's attitude," it continued, "is to say that some evidence placed cigarette smoking on the scene of the crime but the evidence is not strong enough to convict it. Other data link air pollution to lung cancer."

Wheel Chairs Dance

Columbus, Ohio (AP)—At Ohio State University, two dozen students spent hours recently swinging partners in a wheel-chair square dance as part of their school work. Dr. W. C. Only member of the class who actually is handicapped is Miss Louise Wells, 20, who has walked on crutches since a polio attack. People in wheel chairs, she says, can with modifications do practically all the well-known dances.

Various Blazes Occupy Firemen In County Units

Rosendale and Bloomington Fire Departments had the assistance of a Thruway contractor's bulldozer in combatting a brush and grass fire on a hill near the Creek Locks road Saturday afternoon.

The fire, which burned through small pines and brush, kept firemen at the scene for about an hour and a half. The blaze was kept from spreading when a contractor on Thruway work in the area offered the use of a bulldozer which was used to cut a swath around the fire area. The alarm was sounded through Mutual Aid headquarters at 1:35 p. m.

Woodstock volunteer firemen were called out at 12:10 p. m. Saturday for a grass fire near Zena. Chief George Haythorne reported that Zena residents had the fire about under control when firemen arrived.

Brooder Destroyed

A brooder coop at Finni Farms, Cottekill, was completely destroyed about 2:50 a. m. Sunday when the brooder stove became overheated, it was reported. A pumper from the Cottekill Fire Company was dispatched to the scene and extinguished the blaze.

The West Hurley Fire Company responded to two calls, both involving grass and brush, early Saturday afternoon.

One fire broke out near the dump in Hurley just off Route 28 and the pumper and engine were dispatched at 12:18 p. m. About three or four acres were reported burned and several houses threatened before the flames were brought under control. Approximately 30 men answered the call, securing equipment about 2 p. m.

They were hardly secured when a second call was received at 2:10 p. m. to a grass fire on the property of E. T. Raffaldi on Route 28A near the spillway. Two or three dog coops were burned and a bungalow threatened, it was reported. The bungalow was not damaged, however. About 25 volunteers were at the scene. Equipment was secured about 4:45 p. m.

Financial and Commercial

New York, April 12 (AP)—The stock market sagged today after a higher start.

Prices were up a little on balance at the opening, but from that point onward they retreated slowly. By early afternoon, the market as a whole was off.

Changes went from around a point lower to fractions higher. The overall movement, however, was slight.

The pace of trading was rather well maintained at around two million shares for the entire day. It was considerably below Friday's big 2,360,000 shares, second highest total of the year.

U. S. Steel, a major favorite last week, started today on a block of 3,000 shares off ⅛ at 44⅛, and after that it slipped a little lower along with most other steels.

Aircrafts also felt the weight of selling as did many chemicals, electronics issues, special metals, and the building materials group.

Tax Receipts Cited

Ulster county's share of $2,206,237 in state motor fuel tax receipts recently distributed by Comptroller J. Raymond McGovern, is $54,244.65, it was announced today. The amount is for the three months ending March 31. The state distributed $2,405,418 for the same period in 1953. Ten per cent of the state's four-cents-a-gallon tax goes to the counties on the proportional basis of county road and town highway mileage in each county.

Banks Can Join

to grant licenses for easements to public agencies for any public use. The bill also would have allowed the authority to dispose of any real estate not necessary for its purposes. He gave no reason for his action.

Movie Code Law

Dewey signed a bill spelling out definitions in New York state's motion picture censorship statute.

The measure stemmed from a recent decision of the U. S. Supreme Court, which held in a censorship case that the term "immoral" was too vague. The court did not rule state censorship unconstitutional.

Films in New York state now are reviewed and licensed, or banned, by the Motion Picture Division of the State Education Department. The 13-member Board of Regents, the state's governing body for education, appoints the division director.

Movies are licensed unless they are obscene, indecent, immoral, sacrilegious or of a character to corrupt morals or to incite crime.

Dewey said in a memorandum "recent Supreme Court decisions have indicated that the term 'immoral' may not be sufficiently definite for constitution purposes. The primary purpose of this bill is to define 'immoral'" and 'tend to corrupt morals' in conformance with the apparent requirements of these cases. It does so by defining them in terms of 'sexual immortality.'"

The governor said the law did not create any new licensing system, expand the scope of motion picture censorship, or enlarge the area of restraint.

Dulles Urges

Peiping regime against aggression in Indochina and to help sponsor a new Southeast Asia defense organization—but only if the Communists spurn a negotiated settlement at Geneva.

Across the English Channel, the French press manifested a little less uneasiness today than previously over the Dulles proposals.

Should Not Refuse

The independent Paris newspaper Le Figaro said "we should not refuse to join in a common declaration provided it does not take the form of an ultimatum."

The Socialist Le Populair, evidently referring to a statement by Sen. Knowland (R.-Calif.) that the United States could delay financial aid to nations which did not follow Dulles' proposals, said:

"The menacing gestures of certain particularly influential American politicians makes a conversation between governments indispensable. To speak of reprisals of such and such a nature between allies shows a lack of mutual friendship. A good mutual understanding can not exist if one ally tries to impose its views on another. M. Dulles appears to understand this. At least his trip to Europe indicates this."

GOP Heads

and Sen. John H. Hughes of Syracuse each received one third-choice "ballot."

Written Comments

Here are some of the written comments from chairmen who took part in the poll:

"We just have not got anybody else of like caliber. From a purely party viewpoint the governor has to run. We need Senator Ives in Washington. Either one would completely slay Franklin D. Roosevelt, Jr."

Dewey is the "greatest governor New York has ever had."

"I prefer Dewey because he can be elected. He is the best chief executive. He has done more for the people of New York state than has been done for 50 years."

"I have no other choice. Who else is there in the field?"

Only one chairman, who made Ives his first choice, expressed outright criticism of Dewey. He wrote: "The governor is too closely allied with those who have been involved in harness racing, and many people believe the commission appointed by him was more intent on a whitewash than anything else."

Stamford Hotel Is Bought by Esopus Missionary Order

The Redemptorist Order of Esopus has purchased the 56-year-old Rexmere Hotel at Stamford, Delaware county, it was announced Saturday.

Contracts were reported signed during last week for the seven-story structure, one of the larger hotels in the Delaware county region of the Catskills. It was owned by the estate of the late Nicholas Peter Young, of Brooklyn.

Young's daughter, Madeline, of 284 Clinton avenue, Brooklyn, said she was sorry that the building was "going out of the family," but she was pleased to know it had been bought by the missionary order.

Designed for Seminary

After alterations, it will be used as a seminary to train young men for the priesthood. It is expected to house about 100. The building is on Route 23 opposite the Bathgate Hospital. It was built in 1898 by Dr. Stephen Churchill.

Young headed a company which purchased the Rexmere and Churchill Hall, another Stamford hotel in 1919. Churchill Hall was later known as Maselynn. It was razed a few years ago and made way for business establishments.

The Rexmere has 93 rooms and 83 baths.

C of C Will Map Membership Drive Plans on Tuesday

The Board of Directors of the Kingston Chamber of Commerce will make final plans for the annual business meeting and the membership campaign at their regular meeting Tuesday night.

John H. Haulenbeek, chairman of the membership committee, will submit a comprehensive plan as drafted by a planning committee of which J. Ellis Briggs and George Silkworth are also members. The fiscal year starts May 1 and a goal for 1954-55 memberships also will be establisned.

Annual Meeting April 21

The annual membership business meeting April 21 will be unusually important. Members will vote on changing the corporate name to the Kingston Area Chamber of Commerce, Inc. Griswold had been in the Senate since January 1953. He was elected to fill out two years remaining in the term of the late Sen. Kenneth S. Wherry. He had made no public announcement as to whether he planned to seek re-election this fall, but had told friends he expected to be a candidate.

Newburgh Youth Is Hurt Sunday When Car, Truck Collide

Ronald Kimmenau, 17, of 41 Roe street, Newburgh, was taken to St. Luke's Hospital, Newburgh, Sunday afternoon suffering from abrasions and a concussion sustained in a collision between his two-door sedan and a milk truck on Route 208 about two miles north of Wallkill, according to Highland State Police.

His condition was reported "good" this morning by hospital authorities.

Troopers said Kimmenau, traveling north, was attempting to pass three cars going up a hill when the accident occurred. They reported that the highway is only two lanes wide.

Tanker Fully Loaded

The tanker, fully loaded, was descending the hill, according to troopers, and attempted to pull off to the right to avoid collision. The left front ends of the two vehicles met and the truck, owned by the Marcus Trucking Company of Monroe, went down an embankment and ended up in a small stream. The driver of the truck, Clyde Burton Lane, 22, of Bearsville, was treated for shock by a local physician, troopers said.

According to the state police report, both vehicles suffered "total damage." The accident was reported at 3:10 p. m.

Says Cause Not Found

New York, April 12 (AP)—The American Cancer Society reports that deaths from lung cancer in men have risen 500 per cent in the past 20 years but it says science has not discovered the cause. In its annual report yesterday the society said it "takes the position that the causes of this rise have not yet been demonstrated scientifically." "Perhaps the best way to express the society's attitude," it continued, "is to say that some evidence placed cigarette smoking on the scene of the crime but the evidence is not strong enough to convict it. Other data link air pollution to lung cancer."

Only member of the class who actually is handicapped is Miss Louise Wells, 20, who has walked on crutches since a polio attack. People in wheel chairs, she says, can with modifications do practically all the well-known dances.

The fire, which burned through small pines and brush, kept firemen at the scene for about an hour and a half. The blaze was kept from spreading when a contractor on Thruway work in the area offered the use of a bulldozer which was used to cut a swath around the fire area. The alarm was sounded through Mutual Aid headquarters at 1:35 p. m.

One fire broke out near the dump in Hurley just off Route 28 and the pumper and engine were dispatched at 12:18 p. m. About three or four acres were reported burned and several houses threatened before the flames were brought under control. Approximately 30 men answered the call, securing equipment about 2 p. m.

They were hardly secured when a second call was received at 2:10 p. m. to a grass fire on the property of E. T. Raffaldi on Route 28A near the spillway. Two or three dog coops were burned and a bungalow threatened, it was reported. The bungalow was not damaged, however. About 25 volunteers were at the scene. Equipment was secured about 4:45 p. m.

Financial and Commercial

New York, April 12 (AP)—The stock market sagged today after a higher start.

Prices were up a little on balance at the opening, but from that point onward they retreated slowly. By early afternoon, the market as a whole was off.

Changes went from around a point lower to fractions higher. The overall movement, however, was slight.

The pace of trading was rather well maintained at around two million shares for the entire day. It was considerably below Friday's big 2,360,000 shares, second highest total of the year.

U. S. Steel, a major favorite last week, started today on a block of 3,000 shares off ⅛ at 44⅛, and after that it slipped a little lower along with most other steels.

Aircrafts also felt the weight of selling as did many chemicals, electronics issues, special metals, and the building materials group.

Tax Receipts Cited

Ulster county's share of $2,206,237 in state motor fuel tax receipts recently distributed by Comptroller J. Raymond McGovern, is $54,244.65, it was announced today. The amount is for the three months ending March 31. The state distributed $2,405,418 for the same period in 1953. Ten per cent of the state's four-cents-a-gallon tax goes to the counties on the proportional basis of county road and town highway mileage in each county.

Banks Can Join

to grant licenses for easements to public agencies for any public use. The bill also would have allowed the authority to dispose of any real estate not necessary for its purposes. He gave no reason for his action.

Movie Code Law

The measure stemmed from a recent decision of the U. S. Supreme Court, which held in a censorship case that the term "immoral" was too vague. The court did not rule state censorship unconstitutional.

Films in New York state now are reviewed and licensed, or banned, by the Motion Picture Division of the State Education Department. The 13-member Board of Regents, the state's governing body for education, appoints the division director.

Movies are licensed unless they are obscene, indecent, immoral, sacrilegious or of a character to corrupt morals or to incite crime.

Dewey said in a memorandum "recent Supreme Court decisions have indicated that the term 'immoral' may not be sufficiently definite for constitution purposes. The primary purpose of this bill is to define 'immoral'' and 'tend to corrupt morals' in conformance with the apparent requirements of these cases. It does so by defining them in terms of 'sexual immortality.'"

The governor said the law did not create any new licensing system, expand the scope of motion picture censorship, or enlarge the area of restraint.

Dulles Urges

Peiping regime against aggression in Indochina and to help sponsor a new Southeast Asia defense organization—but only if the Communists spurn a negotiated settlement at Geneva.

Across the English Channel, the French press manifested a little less uneasiness today than previously over the Dulles proposals.

Should Not Refuse

The independent Paris newspaper Le Figaro said "we should not refuse to join in a common declaration provided it does not take the form of an ultimatum."

The Socialist Le Populair, evidently referring to a statement by Sen. Knowland (R.-Calif.) that the United States could delay financial aid to nations which did not follow Dulles' proposals, said: "The menacing gestures of certain particularly influential American politicians makes a conversation between governments indispensable. To speak of reprisals of such and such a nature between allies shows a lack of mutual friendship. A good mutual understanding can not exist if one ally tries to impose its views on another. M. Dulles appears to understand this. At least his trip to Europe indicates this."

GOP Heads

and Sen. John H. Hughes of Syracuse each received one third-choice "ballot."

Written Comments

Here are some of the written comments from chairmen who took part in the poll:

"We just have not got anybody else of like caliber. From a purely party viewpoint the governor has to run. We need Senator Ives in Washington. Either one would completely slay Franklin D. Roosevelt, Jr."

Dewey is the "greatest governor New York has ever had."

"I prefer Dewey because he can be elected. He is the best chief executive. He has done more for the people of New York state than has been done for 50 years."

"I have no other choice. Who else is there in the field?"

Only one chairman, who made Ives his first choice, expressed outright criticism of Dewey. He wrote: "The governor is too closely allied with those who have been involved in harness racing, and many people believe the commission appointed by him was more intent on a whitewash than anything else."

(Tomorrow: A story on a poll of Democratic county chairmen to determine their choices for their party's gubernatorial nomination.)

Radioactivity Reported

Calcutta, India, April 12 (AP)—Radioactive dust from nuclear explosions has been picked up in India, Calcutta University's Institute of Nuclear Physics announced today. The radioactive content of the dust was stated to be small and quite harmless. The institute has been searching for radioactive dust since America's H-bomb tests began in the Pacific, despite the fact Calcutta is more than 7,000 miles from the explosion area.

Stamford Hotel Is Bought by Esopus Missionary Order

The Redemptorist Order of Esopus has purchased the 56-year-old Rexmere Hotel at Stamford, Delaware county, it was announced Saturday.

Contracts were reported signed during last week for the seven-story structure, one of the larger hotels in the Delaware county region of the Catskills. It was owned by the estate of the late Nicholas Peter Young, of Brooklyn.

Young's daughter, Madeline, of 284 Clinton avenue, Brooklyn, said she was sorry that the building was "going out of the family," but she was pleased to know it had been bought by the missionary order.

Designed for Seminary

After alterations, it will be used as a seminary to train young men for the priesthood. It is expected to house about 100. The building is on Route 23 opposite the Bathgate Hospital. It was built in 1898 by Dr. Stephen Churchill.

Young headed a company which purchased the Rexmere and Churchill Hall, another Stamford hotel in 1919. Churchill Hall was later known as Maselynn. It was razed a few years ago and made way for business establishments.

The Rexmere has 93 rooms and 83 baths.

Queen Opens Parliament

Colombo, Ceylon, April 12 (AP)—Queen Elizabeth II, wearing her coronation gown and a diamond tiara, opened the third session of the Ceylonese Parliament today in a brilliant ceremony. Most left wing opposition members of Parliament, including the Communists, boycotted the ceremony, but a threatened demonstration by the Communist bloc leader did not materialize. There had been rumors the Red legislator would criticize the government program set out in the Queen's speech from the throne in a point of order to the speaker.

Exiled Prince Killed

Datchet, England, April 12 (AP)—Exiled 26-year-old Prince Nicholas of Yugoslavia was killed in an automobile accident as he drove through this Buckinghamshire village early today. The prince was a cousin of ex-King Peter and the younger son of Prince Paul, regent for the young king before World War 2. He also was a nephew of the Duchess of Kent, the former Princess Marina of Greece. Nicholas was alone in his car when it plunged into a ditch. His body was found in the wreckage.

Employes Held Up

New York, April 12 (AP)—A young robber who gained entrance by posing as a deliveryman before the store opened, held up three employes of the Wallach's Men's Shop at Fifth avenue and 44th street today and escaped with more than $5,000. The robber knocked, said he had a package to deliver and was admitted by Frank Mark, of Westbury.

Car Is Damaged

An automobile driven by Fred L. Wells, 33, of Lake Minnewaska skidded on the wet pavement, struck two fence posts and hit a tree stump along Route 209 in the town of Ulster about 6:15 p. m., Sunday, according to a sheriff's office report. The front end, wheels, bushings and springs of the vehicle were reported damaged, but no personal injury was listed on the report.

Guard Suspended As Killer Dies In Prison Break

Trenton, N. J., April 12 (AP)—Authorities today sought to fix blame for the remarkable escape from Trenton State Prison's death row of a condemned killer who later was shot to death by a tower guard.

Two other condemned slayers helped John L. Vaszorich in his Saturday night break—the first from the prison death house in 32 years. But the 24-year-old prisoner was cut down by sub machine gun bullets before he could reach the 30-foot walls to freedom.

Vaszorich was scheduled to be electrocuted the week of April 25 for a 1951 robbery slaying. He died early yesterday with three .45 caliber sub machine gun bullets in his body.

May Relieve Others

One guard was suspended yesterday in the wake of a preliminary inquiry. Officials hinted that additional guards might be relieved of duty.

John I. Van Note, 54, of Trenton, a death house guard for 15 years, was suspended by Sanford Bates, commissioner of the state department of institutions and agencies, pending completion of the probe.

The guard told authorities he was held captive for almost three hours while Vaszorich picked the lock of the cell. But Bates said Van Note's story contained defects that just don't make sense."

A tower guard spotted Vaszorich crouching on top of the roof of the prison laundry—about half a city block from the death house—and shouted a warning for him to come down. The Ocean Grove killer refused, and the guard opened fire. Vaszorich fell 15 feet to the ground, with slugs in his arm, leg and side.

Vaszorich made his break from the death house by overpowering Van Note. The prisoner, complaining of a headache, had asked the guard for aspirin Saturday evening.

As Van Note handed him two tablets, Vaszorich lunged at him and pinned the guard's arm against the bars.

Others Aided Plan

Then the two other condemned killers—Silvio De Vita, 23, and Joseph Grillo, 24, both of Newark—pitched in to help Vaszorich.

Authorities said De Vita, two cells away from Vaszorich, hooked a corner of a corridor desk with a mop he had in his cell. He pulled the desk to his cell and got a pair of pliers and a screwdriver from a drawer.

De Vita passed the tools to Grillo in the cell next to Vaszorich's. Grillo in turn handed them to Vaszorich.

Apparently while he still was holding Van Note, Vaszorich picked his cell lock with the screwdriver. Then he bound the guard with strips torn from a bedsheet.

Van Note, after working himself free of his bonds, sounded the alarm.

Think It Through

By EDWARD F. HUTTON

Not all is gold that glitters. Social Security shines as "fool's gold" when it is called "Insurance." It is not.

Mr. Hutton

No one has an enforceabe contract under Social Security. Congress can legally increase, decrease or wipe out the benefits.

Public opinion no doubt will prevent Congress from ever failing to pay out some dollars for Social Security. But Congress can determine how much those dollars will buy, through its inflationary or deflationary actions.

Undoubtedly, regular savings programs will suffer as the individual outgo for Social Security increases. That may spell trouble for investment in private industry, in such private programs as retirement "insurance" income plans.

Take a look at your last pay check. See how that Social Security payment jumped? If Congress has its way, the payment will leap in the next few years. And the big "give away" program will get bigger.

I have only words of caution: If you are sold on this method of "Security," better write your Congressman and suggest they put a few guarantees into your "contract."

H-BOMB MAY CONTAIN PEACE

The whole world is deeply stirred by the crushing facts of America's newest H-bomb explosions. People are beginning to understand everywhere that the "hydrogen age" has really dawned, and that it could be an age of awesome destructiveness ruinous to all mankind.

Even the Russians appear to be impressed by the totality of devastation an H-bomb war would bring. A Russian observer at Bikini said "not much" when he witnessed an early postwar A-bomb blast at our invitation.

Of course he was deliberately minimizing the bomb's importance for propaganda effect. The Kremlin is no longer belittling the dangers of nuclear warfare.

A month ago Premier Malenkov, for the first time, told the Soviet people world civilization might be destroyed by nuclear weapons. With the passing weeks, the warnings from Moscow have grown more forceful.

Recently, in the Russian Army newspaper, Red Star, the H-bomb blast in the Pacific was fully described, and compared with that of a famous million-ton meteorite which devastated thousands of square miles in Siberia in 1908.

In the newest Russian note to the western powers, suggesting Russian entry into NATO, Foreign Minister Molotov included a gloomy paragraph speculating on the grim results to the world of a war fought with atomic and hydrogen weapons.

Some western diplomats in Moscow believe that, despite the evident absurdity of the latest Soviet proposal, Russia now sincerely desires to find a way out of the cold war. The presumption is that this wish is founded on recognition that it might become hot, and that such a conflict simply cannot be contemplated.

The west has decided to give Moscow another opportunity to demonstrate whether it truly does desire to reach a settlement that could promise avoidance of total war. It has called for new United Nations talks on disarmament. Russia's response to this call will furnish a strong clue to its present attitude.

Meantime, a good deal of irresponsible comment is being heard from two great headquarters of irresponsibility, the Bevanite faction of the British Labor Party and the Indian government of Prime Minister Nehru.

The Laborites call for an end to further tests (regardless of whether they can be shown to have done any damage to ocean food resources). Nehru asks the same. Some of his high officials go further and call Americans "barbarians" for even conducting the tests.

This latter comment, of course, reflects ignorance, of which Indian officials have a substantial quota in matters beyond their own borders.

Implicit in both the Nehru and the Bevanite complaints is the notion that somehow America is less concerned for the peace of the world than they are. These are men of limited outlook, plying a narrow political trade which they think can be made to fatten on anti-Americanism.

The truth is that these H-bomb tests may do more for peace—by showing the utter horror of another war—than a carload of Nehrus or a whole countryful of Bevanites shouting demagogic imprecations at the top of their lungs.

USED STAMP BUSINESS

The government recently took a fling at the used stamp business. Some 25,000 foreign stamps, clipped in the White House mail room, and a number of foreign and domestic stamps saved in other government offices, were offered for sale to stamp buyers from various cities. If the sales show a profit the government may enter the used stamp business on a permanent basis.

It is not yet known whether the money realized from the sale will be enough to justify the time, labor and expense involved in setting up the sale. If it doesn't little will be lost. Any idea, however, which aims at increasing government income without putting further strain on the taxpayers is worthy of a trial.

PAT McCARRAN SPEAKS UP

In the course of the criticism of the investigations of Congressional committees, it is often suggested that the FBI is the agency to do this work, particularly when such investigations apply to the Executive branch of the Government. The confusion here lies between investigation and exposure; the FBI can have no function, under the law, in the exposure of citizens or government departments. As a matter of fact, the data in its files are always confidential.

J. Edgar Hoover has only too often made this clear. In a statement for the "United States News and World Report," he called attention to the limitations of his organization:

"The Bureau is not alone responsible for the internal security of the country. I would like to point out that in the matters we handle, the decision to prosecute is that of the Department of Justice and not that of the FBI. We never make recommendations for prosecution or nolle prosse. That is the responsibility of the officials of the main Department. We are not responsible for the registration of subversive organizations. That is a responsibility of the departmental officials. The decision for dealing with subversive aliens is the responsibility of the Immigration and Naturalization Service, not the FBI. Monitoring of foreign radio broadcasts is under the control of the FCC (Federal Communications Commission). The Department of Defense screens NATO (North Atlantic Treaty Organization) personnel, handles plant protection, and designates key industrial facilities. Also, the Customs Service has certain responsibilities which enter into the field of internal security.

"The FBI has the responsibility of investigating activities of subversive and Communist elements in this country. It has the responsibility for the investigation of espionage, sabotage, and related matters in this country."

The real danger is that those who are opposed to Congressional committees are moving in the direction of the establishment of a Gestapo in the United States, a national police force with excessive powers, which they would themselves oppose once they realized the consequences of their suggestions. If ever the day comes that such a force is brought into being, the first to resign from it will be J. Edgar Hoover, who has always fought off those who would expand the FBI beyond an investigative agency except in certain specific criminal matters such as kidnapping. The Congressional committee has always had its particular place in our system and that place cannot be taken by the FBI.

Senator Pat McCarran of Nevada has, out of his long experience as a Chairman of the Senate Judiciary Committee, called attention to J. Edgar Hoover's position. More than that, he sounded the tocsin:

". . . let me add just another word about another major Communist objective. That objective is the destruction of anti-Communist activity in the Congress of the United States, especially the destruction of Congressional investigating committees which have been exposing Communists, and exposing the pattern of Communist infiltration, in the past, into various facets of our national life."

Even admitting that some or many citizens object to the methods of Congressional committees, the Constitution places upon the Congress the principal responsibility for policy-making in our form of government. Reduce the Congress to a nonentity, lower its prestige and authority, and our form of government ceases to exist. There may be those who believe that our form of government requires alteration in the middle of the twentieth century; if they so hold, it should be accomplished by proper means as provided for in the Constitution and not as a result of a quarrel over a side issue.

Senator McCarran, whose chairmanship of the subcommittee to investigate subversion produced the monumental report on the Institute of Pacific Relations, referring to the McCarthy imbroglio, said:

". . . Basically, the real issue is rapidly becoming to be whether at long last, the Communists, with the aid of front groups, fellow-travelers, Communist sympathizers, and dupes, are going to succeed in their efforts to silence the committees of the United States Congress who have been starting to tear away the mask from the sinister operations in this country of the world Communist conspiracy."

That is the issue whether one likes Senator McCarthy or not, and it will remain the issue no matter what happens to Senator McCarthy. Even if the Democrats should be able to organize after the November elections, Senators McCarran and McClellan will be in charge to carry the program forward.

That Body of Yours

PREPARING FOR EMERGENCY SURGERY

An elderly man was referred by his family physician for a surgical operation to be performed immediately. Despite his age, both physician and surgeon thought that emergency operation was absolutely necessary.

In Geriatrics, the medical journal devoted to research and clinical study of aging processes, Drs. Sidney E. Ziffren and Ramond F. Sheets describe the preparation of the aged patient facing emergency surgery. "In 1951, the precentage of patients sixty years of age and over admitted to the surgical service of the University Hospital of the State University of Iowa was 33 1/3 per cent of the total. The death rate of all surgical patients of that year was 2.8 per cent and for those 60 and over it was 5.49 per cent. These patients underwent surgical operations involving every portion of the body and a great many had acute surgical emergencies." The death rate in these elderly patients was low enough to make Drs. Ziffren and Sheets believe that it is wiser to perform necessary operations in the aged and, ordinarily, it is poor clinical judgment to refuse operations because of age.

"The most difficult situations confronting the surgeon in the care of aged patients are those which occur just before operating and the correct handling of the patient at this time may mean the difference between success and failure on the operating table or shortly thereafter." The most important point is blood volume. "Low blood volume is particularly common in patients with cancer, intestinal infection, intestinal obstruction, dehydration and malnutrition." "Under ordinary circumstances, the most acute problem is deciding when the blood volume has been adequately replaced."

As a general rule, from a pint to a quart of blood may be transfused into the patient in periods of 30 to 45 minutes without difficulty to elderly, ill, anemic patients. Many elderly patients enter the hospital dehydrated (insufficient liquids in their tissues) so transfusions are used immediately to overcome this deficit.

America! Take Up the Sword!

Edson's Washington News Notebook

NEA Washington Correspondent

Washington (NEA)—It is a good sign that release of the first facts and pictures of the hydrogen bomb have caused no great panic.

If ever cool heads, free from hysteria, were needed to think through on a problem, this is the time.

The fact that a weapon now exists—powerful enough to wipe out Washington or any other metropolitan center—provides a subject that could easily lend itself to some high-fidelity demagoguery. Consider some of its more awesome possibilities, as analyzed here:

The H-bomb makes any pretense at bomb shelters and civil defense measures seem somewhat futile. There is no safety from this weapon other than flight to the tall timber or deep mountain caves.

The one defense offered is a vastly increased interceptor Air Force, bolstered with guided missiles, radar screens and antiaircraft artillery. An adequate force might cost a hundred billion dollars or more. This expense might easily wreck the country financially before it could be wrecked physically by the bomb.

On the other hand, it is argued that even these measures would be useless. For the FBI has revealed that it would be possible to smuggle in the parts for atomic weapons. They could be assembled and time-fused to do by sabotage what enemy aircraft might not be able to do in open warfare.

The mere existence of this weapon completely changes all concepts of military strategy and tactics. Whole armies, fleets and air armadas can be destroyed by a single H-bomb. It makes obsolete existing weapons of both offense and defense.

Or does it? A hydrogen bomb or even a puny atomic bomb could not raise the siege at Dien Bien Phu without destroying its heroic defenders. So what good is it?

This is the argument of conventional strategists. According to them, the doughboy in the mud, the rifles, the hand granades and the elemental booby trap will always be necessary to win a war.

What this reasoning seems to do is put the H-bomb in the category of a weapon of phychological warfare. It is so powerful that no one will dare use it. But as a threat—capable of being held heavy over the heads of those who do not have it—the H-bomb can force the have-nots to yield to the will of the haves or face destruction.

Possessed by the forces of righteousness, the H-bomb as a psychological weapon becomes a force for good. Possessed by the ungodly, it becomes a force for evil.

This seems to lead towards a movement to outlaw the H-bomb completely. Voices abroad have already been raised with this demand. There has been some surprise that the Communist leadership has not launched a new world-wide appeal, like the Stockholm peace petition.

Millions or signatures could easily be secured from the little people of the world in support of an international agreement to ban the use of the H-bomb, and its little brother, the A-bomb.

One reason why such a petition may not have been launched is that the Communist leaders do not want the bomb outlawed. Possessing the H-bomb, they unquestionably have their own plans for its use to serve their own ends.

Or, with their record of perfidy, they might easly plan to use it after other nations of the world had given it up.

So outlawing the bomb may not be the answer, either. Outlawing the bomb merely puts the world back where it was before, with a gloomy future of unending little wars.

What seems to be needed here is a bigger answer. So far, no world leader has spoken out clearly on all these matters. The subject is too new and perhaps too big for immediate comprehension.

There has not been time to think through to a logical end—calmly, unemotionally and with a minimum of demagoguery — to show the path to peace.

It is a problem for everyone to think about, and speak out on, too, in this Easter season of hope. For in the long run, in a democracy, the leaders reflect and carry out only the wishes of the people.

It is not a situation of complete frustration. Civilization isn't going to be destroyed as some pessimists wail. This thing can be worked out.

But at this precise second of history, the answers are not clear.

Carrier Welcomed

Seattle (AP) — The giant aircraft carrier Franklin D. Roosevelt received the biggest welcome of her career on a stop-over here on the way to a 40 million dollar facelifting job in the Puget Sound Naval Shipyard. Naval officers estimated 100,000 people swarmed aboard during a Sunday afternoon "open house." Cars jammed the streets for miles. The carrier, too big to go through the Panama Canal, had to come around South America.

Today in Washington

Joseph P. Tumulty Died in Obscurity, 'Broken in Mind and Spirit'

By DAVID LAWRENCE

Washington, April 12—This is the tragic and untold story of a man who helped make American history in its most critical period, who sat next to a President of the United States at the White House for eight years and influenced some of the most significant policies of our government before and during World War 1, and yet died last week in virtual obscurity, broken in mind and spirit.

Joseph Patrick Tumulty was secretary to President Woodrow Wilson and no man since his time has ever held a comparable position of influence. Tumulty had no corps of "administrative assistants" such as are supplied nowadays at the White House. He had no press secretary, for he handled all press relations himself. He was not a member of the cabinet but had more influence than all of them combined. His genius for discerning the trends of public opinion and his uncanny faculty of coming up with a memorandum of policy at opportune moments that fitted the domestic or international situation, as the case may be, would mean, if President Eisenhower had such a man today, the difference between a divided and a united party.

Always aware of the progressive and liberal trend of American thinking, Tumulty successfully influenced Woodrow Wilson to be articulate at all times against reactionary policies but never to antagonize individual conservatives in the Democratic party whose support was needed in Congress for the legislative program.

Most important of all, Tumulty knew when a policy, for example, of "peace with prosperity" could be espoused as in the campaign of 1916 and he could be outspokenly belligerent when, as in 1917 Berlin again ordered her submarines to vioalte American rights on the high seas. He was never lacking at any time in his advice to strike hard at those who wanted to appease imperialist Germany or to cater to the "hyphenated Americans"—those who allowed sympathy for the countries of their origin to becloud their vision of what a truly American policy toward Europe should be. Tumulty took a good deal of abuse from some of the professional Irish-American organizations of those days which was flung at him notwithstanding his Irish ancestry and the assistance he had given on other occasions to the cause of Ireland's independence.

The opposition to the presence of a Catholic as private secretary at the elbow of a President of the United States began when Governor Wilson, as president-elect, was considering the continuance of Tumulty in the post which he had occupied at the state house in Trenton.

Riding alone with Mr. Wilson one morning early in 1913 on a day coach to Trenton from Princeton, this writer, then an Associated Press reporter assigned to cover the President-elect, had an off-the-record conversation which ran like this:

"Whom will you pick as private secretary?"

"I am being urged in many letters," Mr. Wilson replied, "not to appoint a Catholic, but I've made up my mind to ram that appointment down the throats of the bigots and pick Tumulty."

Small wonder that Mr. Wilson had at his side such a devoted, faithful, hard-working assistant who spent every waking hour in devoted work for his chief.

The anti-Catholic issue arose again after Mr. Wilson was re-elected in November, 1916, and this time it looked as if the opposition which came from intimate friends in the political world would persuade Mr. Wilson to force the resignation of Tumulty. The Wilson mind was virtually closed. He had written a letter to Tumulty suggesting his resignation. Immediately on learning of the letter, this writer, at that time Washington correspondent of the New York Evening Post, went to the White House and spent forty-five minutes alone with the President urging him to reconsider and reminded him of his 1913 stand against religious bigotry in America. The next day Mr. Wilson determined to ignore the cabal and welcomed Tumulty for another term as his private secretary. That was the kind of a "Liberal" Woodrow Wilson was before his physical collapse deprived him of the keen judgment of human values he had so dramatically exhibited in public affairs.

The distinguished service rendered by Tumulty to his country is well told by John Morton Blum, now an assistant professor at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, in a well-documented biography entitled "Joe Tumulty and the Wilson era," published in 1951 by the Houghton Mifflin Company of Boston. It tells of the inexplicable manner in which Mr. Wilson, sick and inaccessible to old friends, was persuaded, in April, 1922, to write a letter to the New York Times repudiating an oral message of greeting which Tumulty had brought to a testimonial dinner in New York city for Governor James M. Cox of Ohio. Mr. Cox, though supporting the Wilson policies 100 per cent, was defeated for the presidency on the Democratic ticket in 1920 and was being talked of again for the nomination.

The message — unimportant in itself and constituting really no endorsement of anybody for the 1924 nomination—was due to a misunderstanding by Tumulty of an ambiguous, if not incoherent, expression by Mr. Wilson when he was ill. After the Wilson statement, Tumulty apologized publicly for the error but he never was permitted to see Mr. Wilson again in the two remaining years that the former President lived and was not even invited to ride in the funeral procession until Mr. McAdoo, former secretary of the treasury and son-in-law of Mr. Wilson interceded.

This episode, it has long been assumed by friends, was the genesis of the nervous breakdown that struck Tumulty in later years. He never really recovered from the shock of being cast off after his years of faithful service. He lived the last decade in solitary seclusion. He never consented to see any friends of the past and did not even see all the members of his large family. He read the newspapers daily and discussed public affairs intelligently with his eldest son but he seemed to have departed to some other world and never came back, despite the efforts of the best psychiatrists in America to fathom the mystery of his shattered mind. Last week marked the end of the life of as unselfish a public servant as Washington has known in a half century. What price glory!

AS PEGLER SEES IT

By WESTBROOK PEGLER

(Since this column was written, the De Konigs have been sentenced The senior De Konig received one to one and a half years in prison; his son got a suspended sentence of one year).

New York, April 11—Alicia Patterson, in private life Mrs. Harry F. Guggenheim, has brought to a soggy triumph a great scrap by an obscure daily paper of restricted circulation area. This vigorous genius took out after William D. De Konig, senior and junior, brutal insatiable thugs and thieves who were running a fat local of the Union of Operating Engineers in Mineola, L. I., where Alicia founded a few years ago a tabloid called Newsday. She has now destroyed the De Konigs but without appropriate punishment and she is willing to let it go at that.

Alicia is a daughter of the late Joseph Medill Patterson who started the New York News just after the first war. She very much resembles the late Joe or Jomp as the staff called him, daring, original and as often wrong-headed. Jomp, for instance, fell for F. D. Roosevelt all the way down to the proposition of a second World War for the United States by which time he had endorsed or condoned most of Roosevelt's anti-constitutional innovations.

He needlessly gave the Newspaper Guild a closed shop, a harsh affront to loyal employes who hated the Guild and deserved his help in preserving their status as individuals apart from the mass. Now the guild was to take over his spiritual function—a bureaucrat's word but my best effort at the moment—and the relations between these people and their old patron, baron and papa ceased to be affectionate and become contractual. Jomp had been a Socialist as a kid and had written a punk but noisy novel called "The Little Brother of the Rich" which he thought less and less of as years went by.

Alicia looks a good deal like her late Aunt Cissy, who published the Washington Times-Herald and fought the whole mocking New Deal cabal with profane gusto and, on dying, left the paper to a passel of employes of the city-room and business office who reacted just as she probably thought they would.

I have been watching Alicia's job on the De Konigs for three years and it is a personal and artistic disappointment to hear her say in a surprisingly spiritless mood that if Senior gets a year in prison he will come out a broken man. It is not easy to say off-hand how much time off the late end of a no-good's life is enough to balance years of oppression of his fellow-men and extortion so greedy over so long a time that the local district attorney hasn't enough official funds to find out how much he did steal. But certainly Junior De Konig is young and guilty enough to get 20 years subject to statutory discounts starting after, say, a decade. They both have been predators for years and the judge could, if he had a mind to, put them away for as long as they live on consecutive sentences.

Alicia and Alan Hathway, her managing editor, began to dig on an original tip that the De Konigs were extorting money from a group of contractors who were building row on row of family houses to sell at less than $10,000. They were laying a "cellar" tax of $8 per house which was a way of saying that for $8 per house they excused these contractors from employing a "hoisting" engineer whose services simply could not have been used anyway because there was no work for "hoists" on flimsy bowers of two stories at most.

About 60,000 or maybe 70,000 of these homes were built so the De Konigs, sire and son, and each a credit to the other, clipped the poor, yearning aspirants to little homes with roses 'round the door, for a total of from $480,000 to $560,000 on this item alone. This deal was done under the auspices of the International Union of Operating Engineers, the old Joe Fay racket, and De Konig, the elder, was office boy, flunkey and professional protege of the old master who held court in his Sing Sing cell with politicians, unioneers and other crooks of high degree calling to seek his favor.

The president of the racket is William E. Maloney, with headquarters in Chicago, who has or had a mansion in Miami Beach, a racing stable and a stockfarm in Illinois and who is splendidly immune so far to the harassments that have befallen Fay, the De Konigs and other subordinates. It means nothing nowadays to say that his union is one of the crookedest we have. It is that, to be sure, but nobody cares and in the case of the De Konigs the formal reproof from the court will seem

The whole world is deeply stirred by the crushing facts of America's newest H-bomb explosions. People are beginning to understand everywhere that the "hydrogen age" has really dawned, and that it could be an age of awesome destructiveness ruinous to all mankind.

Even the Russians appear to be impressed by the totality of devastation an H-bomb war would bring. A Russian observer at Bikini said "not much" when he witnessed an early postwar A-bomb blast at our invitation.

Of course he was deliberately minimizing the bomb's importance for propaganda effect. The Kremlin is no longer belittling the dangers of nuclear warfare.

A month ago Premier Malenkov, for the first time, told the Soviet people world civilization might be destroyed by nuclear weapons. With the passing weeks, the warnings from Moscow have grown more forceful.

Recently, in the Russian Army newspaper, Red Star, the H-bomb blast in the Pacific was fully described, and compared with that of a famous million-ton meteorite which devastated thousands of square miles in Siberia in 1908.

In the newest Russian note to the western powers, suggesting Russian entry into NATO, Foreign Minister Molotov included a gloomy paragraph speculating on the grim results to the world of a war fought with atomic and hydrogen weapons.

Some western diplomats in Moscow believe that, despite the evident absurdity of the latest Soviet proposal, Russia now sincerely desires to find a way out of the cold war. The presumption is that this wish is founded on recognition that it might become hot, and that such a conflict simply cannot be contemplated.

The west has decided to give Moscow another opportunity to demonstrate whether it truly does desire to reach a settlement that could promise avoidance of total war. It has called for new United Nations talks on disarmament. Russia's response to this call will furnish a strong clue to its present attitude.

Meantime, a good deal of irresponsible comment is being heard from two great headquarters of irresponsibility, the Bevanite faction of the British Labor Party and the Indian government of Prime Minister Nehru.

The Laborites call for an end to further tests (regardless of whether they can be shown to have done any damage to ocean food resources). Nehru asks the same. Some of his high officials go further and call Americans "barbarians" for even conducting the tests.

This latter comment, of course, reflects ignorance, of which Indian officials have a substantial quota in matters beyond their own borders.

Implicit in both the Nehru and the Bevanite complaints is the notion that somehow America is less concerned for the peace of the world than they are. These are men of limited outlook, plying a narrow political trade which they think can be made to fatten on anti-Americanism.

The truth is that these H-bomb tests may do more for peace—by showing the utter horror of another war—than a carload of Nehrus or a whole countryful of Bevanites shouting demagogic imprecations at the top of their lungs.

USED STAMP BUSINESS

The government recently took a fling at the used stamp business. Some 25,000 foreign stamps, clipped in the White House mail room, and a number of foreign and domestic stamps saved in other government offices, were offered for sale to stamp buyers from various cities. If the sales show a profit the government may enter the used stamp business on a permanent basis.

It is not yet known whether the money realized from the sale will be enough to justify the time, labor and expense involved in setting up the sale. If it doesn't little will be lost. Any idea, however, which aims at increasing government income without putting further strain on the taxpayers is worthy of a trial.

That is the issue whether one likes Senator McCarthy or not, and it will remain the issue no matter what happens to Senator McCarthy. Even if the Democrats should be able to organize after the November elections, Senators McCarran and McClellan will be in charge to carry the program forward.

PREPARING FOR EMERGENCY SURGERY

An elderly man was referred by his family physician for a surgical operation to be performed immediately. Despite his age, both physician and surgeon thought that emergency operation was absolutely necessary.

In Geriatrics, the medical journal devoted to research and clinical study of aging processes, Drs. Sidney E. Ziffren and Ramond F. Sheets describe the preparation of the aged patient facing emergency surgery. "In 1951, the precentage of patients sixty years of age and over admitted to the surgical service of the University Hospital of the State University of Iowa was 33 1/3 per cent of the total. The death rate of all surgical patients of that year was 2.8 per cent and for those 60 and over it was 5.49 per cent. These patients underwent surgical operations involving every portion of the body and a great many had acute surgical emergencies." The death rate in these elderly patients was low enough to make Drs. Ziffren and Sheets believe that it is wiser to perform necessary operations in the aged and, ordinarily, it is poor clinical judgment to refuse operations because of age.

"The most difficult situations confronting the surgeon in the care of aged patients are those which occur just before operating and the correct handling of the patient at this time may mean the difference between success and failure on the operating table or shortly thereafter." The most important point is blood volume. "Low blood volume is particularly common in patients with cancer, intestinal infection, intestinal obstruction, dehydration and malnutrition." "Under ordinary circumstances, the most acute problem is deciding when the blood volume has been adequately replaced."

As a general rule, from a pint to a quart of blood may be transfused into the patient in periods of 30 to 45 minutes without difficulty to elderly, ill, anemic patients. Many elderly patients enter the hospital dehydrated (insufficient liquids in their tissues) so transfusions are used immediately to overcome this deficit.

Edson's Washington News Notebook

NEA Washington Correspondent

Washington (NEA)—It is a good sign that release of the first facts and pictures of the hydrogen bomb have caused no great panic.

If ever cool heads, free from hysteria, were needed to think through on a problem, this is the time.

The fact that a weapon now exists—powerful enough to wipe out Washington or any other metropolitan center—provides a subject that could easily lend itself to some high-fidelity demagoguery. Consider some of its more awesome possibilities, as analyzed here:

The H-bomb makes any pretense at bomb shelters and civil defense measures seem somewhat futile. There is no safety from this weapon other than flight to the tall timber or deep mountain caves.

The one defense offered is a vastly increased interceptor Air Force, bolstered with guided missiles, radar screens and antiaircraft artillery. An adequate force might cost a hundred billion dollars or more. This expense might easily wreck the country financially before it could be wrecked physically by the bomb.

On the other hand, it is argued that even these measures would be useless. For the FBI has revealed that it would be possible to smuggle in the parts for atomic weapons. They could be assembled and time-fused to do by sabotage what enemy aircraft might not be able to do in open warfare.

The mere existence of this weapon completely changes all concepts of military strategy and tactics. Whole armies, fleets and air armadas can be destroyed by a single H-bomb. It makes obsolete existing weapons of both offense and defense.

Or does it? A hydrogen bomb or even a puny atomic bomb could not raise the siege at Dien Bien Phu without destroying its heroic defenders. So what good is it?

This is the argument of conventional strategists. According to them, the doughboy in the mud, the rifles, the hand granades and the elemental booby trap will always be necessary to win a war.

What this reasoning seems to do is put the H-bomb in the category of a weapon of phychological warfare. It is so powerful that no one will dare use it. But as a threat—capable of being held heavy over the heads of those who do not have it—the H-bomb can force the have-nots to yield to the will of the haves or face destruction.

Possessed by the forces of righteousness, the H-bomb as a psychological weapon becomes a force for good. Possessed by the ungodly, it becomes a force for evil.

This seems to lead towards a movement to outlaw the H-bomb completely. Voices abroad have already been raised with this demand. There has been some surprise that the Communist leadership has not launched a new world-wide appeal, like the Stockholm peace petition.

Millions or signatures could easily be secured from the little people of the world in support of an international agreement to ban the use of the H-bomb, and its little brother, the A-bomb.

One reason why such a petition may not have been launched is that the Communist leaders do not want the bomb outlawed. Possessing the H-bomb, they unquestionably have their own plans for its use to serve their own ends.

Or, with their record of perfidy, they might easly plan to use it after other nations of the world had given it up.

So outlawing the bomb may not be the answer, either. Outlawing the bomb merely puts the world back where it was before, with a gloomy future of unending little wars.

What seems to be needed here is a bigger answer. So far, no world leader has spoken out clearly on all these matters. The subject is too new and perhaps too big for immediate comprehension.

There has not been time to think through to a logical end—calmly, unemotionally and with a minimum of demagoguery — to show the path to peace.

It is a problem for everyone to think about, and speak out on, too, in this Easter season of hope. For in the long run, in a democracy, the leaders reflect and carry out only the wishes of the people.

It is not a situation of complete frustration. Civilization isn't going to be destroyed as some pessimists wail. This thing can be worked out.

But at this precise second of history, the answers are not clear.

Carrier Welcomed

Seattle (AP) — The giant aircraft carrier Franklin D. Roosevelt received the biggest welcome of her career on a stop-over here on the way to a 40 million dollar facelifting job in the Puget Sound Naval Shipyard. Naval officers estimated 100,000 people swarmed aboard during a Sunday afternoon "open house." Cars jammed the streets for miles. The carrier, too big to go through the Panama Canal, had to come around South America.

Joseph P. Tumulty Died in Obscurity, 'Broken in Mind and Spirit'

By DAVID LAWRENCE

Washington, April 12—This is the tragic and untold story of a man who helped make American history in its most critical period, who sat next to a President of the United States at the White House for eight years and influenced some of the most significant policies of our government before and during World War 1, and yet died last week in virtual obscurity, broken in mind and spirit.

Joseph Patrick Tumulty was secretary to President Woodrow Wilson and no man since his time has ever held a comparable position of influence. Tumulty had no corps of "administrative assistants" such as are supplied nowadays at the White House. He had no press secretary, for he handled all press relations himself. He was not a member of the cabinet but had more influence than all of them combined. His genius for discerning the trends of public opinion and his uncanny faculty of coming up with a memorandum of policy at opportune moments that fitted the domestic or international situation, as the case may be, would mean, if President Eisenhower had such a man today, the difference between a divided and a united party.

Always aware of the progressive and liberal trend of American thinking, Tumulty successfully influenced Woodrow Wilson to be articulate at all times against reactionary policies but never to antagonize individual conservatives in the Democratic party whose support was needed in Congress for the legislative program.

Most important of all, Tumulty knew when a policy, for example, of "peace with prosperity" could be espoused as in the campaign of 1916 and he could be outspokenly belligerent when, as in 1917 Berlin again ordered her submarines to vioalte American rights on the high seas. He was never lacking at any time in his advice to strike hard at those who wanted to appease imperialist Germany or to cater to the "hyphenated Americans"—those who allowed sympathy for the countries of their origin to becloud their vision of what a truly American policy toward Europe should be. Tumulty took a good deal of abuse from some of the professional Irish-American organizations of those days which was flung at him notwithstanding his Irish ancestry and the assistance he had given on other occasions to the cause of Ireland's independence.

The opposition to the presence of a Catholic as private secretary at the elbow of a President of the United States began when Governor Wilson, as president-elect, was considering the continuance of Tumulty in the post which he had occupied at the state house in Trenton.

Riding alone with Mr. Wilson one morning early in 1913 on a day coach to Trenton from Princeton, this writer, then an Associated Press reporter assigned to cover the President-elect, had an off-the-record conversation which ran like this:

"Whom will you pick as private secretary?"

"I am being urged in many letters," Mr. Wilson replied, "not to appoint a Catholic, but I've made up my mind to ram that appointment down the throats of the bigots and pick Tumulty."

Small wonder that Mr. Wilson had at his side such a devoted, faithful, hard-working assistant who spent every waking hour in devoted work for his chief.

The anti-Catholic issue arose again after Mr. Wilson was re-elected in November, 1916, and this time it looked as if the opposition which came from intimate friends in the political world would persuade Mr. Wilson to force the resignation of Tumulty. The Wilson mind was virtually closed. He had written a letter to Tumulty suggesting his resignation. Immediately on learning of the letter, this writer, at that time Washington correspondent of the New York Evening Post, went to the White House and spent forty-five minutes alone with the President urging him to reconsider and reminded him of his 1913 stand against religious bigotry in America. The next day Mr. Wilson determined to ignore the cabal and welcomed Tumulty for another term as his private secretary. That was the kind of a "Liberal" Woodrow Wilson was before his physical collapse deprived him of the keen judgment of human values he had so dramatically exhibited in public affairs.

The distinguished service rendered by Tumulty to his country is well told by John Morton Blum, now an assistant professor at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, in a well-documented biography entitled "Joe Tumulty and the Wilson era," published in 1951 by the Houghton Mifflin Company of Boston. It tells of the inexplicable manner in which Mr. Wilson, sick and inaccessible to old friends, was persuaded, in April, 1922, to write a letter to the New York Times repudiating an oral message of greeting which Tumulty had brought to a testimonial dinner in New York city for Governor James M. Cox of Ohio. Mr. Cox, though supporting the Wilson policies 100 per cent, was defeated for the presidency on the Democratic ticket in 1920 and was being talked of again for the nomination.

The message — unimportant in itself and constituting really no endorsement of anybody for the 1924 nomination—was due to a misunderstanding by Tumulty of an ambiguous, if not incoherent, expression by Mr. Wilson when he was ill. After the Wilson statement, Tumulty apologized publicly for the error but he never was permitted to see Mr. Wilson again in the two remaining years that the former President lived and was not even invited to ride in the funeral procession until Mr. McAdoo, former secretary of the treasury and son-in-law of Mr. Wilson interceded.

This episode, it has long been assumed by friends, was the genesis of the nervous breakdown that struck Tumulty in later years. He never really recovered from the shock of being cast off after his years of faithful service. He lived the last decade in solitary seclusion. He never consented to see any friends of the past and did not even see all the members of his large family. He read the newspapers daily and discussed public affairs intelligently with his eldest son but he seemed to have departed to some other world and never came back, despite the efforts of the best psychiatrists in America to fathom the mystery of his shattered mind. Last week marked the end of the life of as unselfish a public servant as Washington has known in a half century. What price glory!

AS PEGLER SEES IT

By WESTBROOK PEGLER

(Since this column was written, the De Konigs have been sentenced The senior De Konig received one to one and a half years in prison; his son got a suspended sentence of one year).

New York, April 11—Alicia Patterson, in private life Mrs. Harry F. Guggenheim, has brought to a soggy triumph a great scrap by an obscure daily paper of restricted circulation area. This vigorous genius took out after William D. De Konig, senior and junior, brutal insatiable thugs and thieves who were running a fat local of the Union of Operating Engineers in Mineola, L. I., where Alicia founded a few years ago a tabloid called Newsday. She has now destroyed the De Konigs but without appropriate punishment and she is willing to let it go at that.

Alicia is a daughter of the late Joseph Medill Patterson who started the New York News just after the first war. She very much resembles the late Joe or Jomp as the staff called him, daring, original and as often wrong-headed. Jomp, for instance, fell for F. D. Roosevelt all the way down to the proposition of a second World War for the United States by which time he had endorsed or condoned most of Roosevelt's anti-constitutional innovations.

He needlessly gave the Newspaper Guild a closed shop, a harsh affront to loyal employes who hated the Guild and deserved his help in preserving their status as individuals apart from the mass. Now the guild was to take over his spiritual function—a bureaucrat's word but my best effort at the moment—and the relations between these people and their old patron, baron and papa ceased to be affectionate and become contractual. Jomp had been a Socialist as a kid and had written a punk but noisy novel called "The Little Brother of the Rich" which he thought less and less of as years went by.

Alicia looks a good deal like her late Aunt Cissy, who published the Washington Times-Herald and fought the whole mocking New Deal cabal with profane gusto and, on dying, left the paper to a passel of employes of the city-room and business office who reacted just as she probably thought they would.

I have been watching Alicia's job on the De Konigs for three years and it is a personal and artistic disappointment to hear her say in a surprisingly spiritless mood that if Senior gets a year in prison he will come out a broken man. It is not easy to say off-hand how much time off the late end of a no-good's life is enough to balance years of oppression of his fellow-men and extortion so greedy over so long a time that the local district attorney hasn't enough official funds to find out how much he did steal. But certainly Junior De Konig is young and guilty enough to get 20 years subject to statutory discounts starting after, say, a decade. They both have been predators for years and the judge could, if he had a mind to, put them away for as long as they live on consecutive sentences.

Alicia and Alan Hathway, her managing editor, began to dig on an original tip that the De Konigs were extorting money from a group of contractors who were building row on row of family houses to sell at less than $10,000. They were laying a "cellar" tax of $8 per house which was a way of saying that for $8 per house they excused these contractors from employing a "hoisting" engineer whose services simply could not have been used anyway because there was no work for "hoists" on flimsy bowers of two stories at most.

About 60,000 or maybe 70,000 of these homes were built so the De Konigs, sire and son, and each a credit to the other, clipped the poor, yearning aspirants to little homes with roses 'round the door, for a total of from $480,000 to $560,000 on this item alone. This deal was done under the auspices of the International Union of Operating Engineers, the old Joe Fay racket, and De Konig, the elder, was office boy, flunkey and professional protege of the old master who held court in his Sing Sing cell with politicians, unioneers and other crooks of high degree calling to seek his favor.

The president of the racket is William E. Maloney, with headquarters in Chicago, who has or had a mansion in Miami Beach, a racing stable and a stockfarm in Illinois and who is splendidly immune so far to the harassments that have befallen Fay, the De Konigs and other subordinates. It means nothing nowadays to say that his union is one of the crookedest we have. It is that, to be sure, but nobody cares and in the case of the De Konigs the formal reproof from the court will seem

Three Studebakers Win Mobilgas Economy Run

Three Studebakers scored wins Thursday, in every class of the annual Mobilgas Economy Run in which they were entered and one of the team won the choicest prize of all, the Sweepstakes award. The run is sponsored by the Socony-Vacuum Oil Company, Inc.

While the Studebaker V-8 Land Cruiser with standard transmission and overdrive was winning the sweepstakes award, two other Studebakers were winning top honors in their classes.

A field of 20 passenger cars began the 1335-mile drive from Los Angeles to Sun Valley on Monday, stopping overnight at San Francisco and again at Elko, Nev. The cars were selected at random by American Automobile Association officials in early March and have since been under constant supervision. The run is designed to point up the gasoline mileage potential of American automobiles when properly maintained and carefully driven.

The new gasoline mileage king, the Land Cruiser, won the Sweepstakes with a ten-miles-per-gallon figure of 60.8465 and chalked up an actual miles-per-gallon mark of 28.1046.

While the Land Cruiser was defeating all comers in the Sweepstakes its smaller team mate, the Studebaker Champion, won its standard and overdrive class and turned in the highest actual miles per gallon of any car, 29.5806. Its record in ton-miles-per-gallon was 56.5128.

The third Studebaker to drive off with honors was the automatic transmission-equipped Land Cruiser. It turned in 53.9942 ton-miles-per-gallon and 24.5763 actual miles per gallon to win the upper medium class for cars with automatic transmissions.

Three Studebakers Win Mobilgas Economy Run

Three Studebakers scored wins Thursday, in every class of the annual Mobilgas Economy Run in which they were entered and one of the team won the choicest prize of all, the Sweepstakes award. The run is sponsored by the Socony-Vacuum Oil Company, Inc.

While the Studebaker V-8 Land Cruiser with standard transmission and overdrive was winning the sweepstakes award, two other Studebakers were winning top honors in their classes.

A field of 20 passenger cars began the 1335-mile drive from Los Angeles to Sun Valley on Monday, stopping overnight at San Francisco and again at Elko, Nev. The cars were selected at random by American Automobile Association officials in early March and have since been under constant supervision. The run is designed to point up the gasoline mileage potential of American automobiles when properly maintained and carefully driven.

The new gasoline mileage king, the Land Cruiser, won the Sweepstakes with a ten-miles-per-gallon figure of 60.8465 and chalked up an actual miles-per-gallon mark of 28.1046.

While the Land Cruiser was defeating all comers in the Sweepstakes its smaller team mate, the Studebaker Champion, won its standard and overdrive class and turned in the highest actual miles per gallon of any car, 29.5806. Its record in ton-miles-per-gallon was 56.5128.

The third Studebaker to drive off with honors was the automatic transmission-equipped Land Cruiser. It turned in 53.9942 ton-miles-per-gallon and 24.5763 actual miles per gallon to win the upper medium class for cars with automatic transmissions.

Manila (AP)—Two Filipino movie stars recently negotiated the surrender of a communist Huk "commander" and 11 of his followers. Nida Blanca and Ted Belarmino met the "commander" by accident last December. Their car stalled on a lonely mountain road in dissident-infested country southeast of Manila. The rebel leader, a man named Amat, said he wanted to give himself up but only to President Ramon Magsaysay. After a month of negotiations, which included several trips to the mountains, the film stars finally persuaded the dissident leader and his men to give themselves up.

SO LONG, PAL—"Cinco Rosa," a month-old burro, says a sad farewell to owner Mark McGovern, who's on his way to an Independence, Mo., hospital. McGovern bought the animal for his son. But his car was involved in an accident on their way to Birmingham, Mich. When Dixon Kepley, an ambulance driver, right, found them, McGovern was doubled up in the front seat and "Cinco Rosa" was licking his master's face. While McGovern was in the hospital, the burro checked into a local barn.

As Pegler Sees It

almost like an endorsement.

Of course the De Koenigs also shook the heavy construction industry, but Alicia and Hathway and a couple of reporters struck little fire outside their own narrow circulation area until the harness-track expose began. They were threatened with bodily harm as the saying goes but were not impressed. Then, with a murder in the Bronx to go on, the big press began to mill around and confirmed Alicia's reiterated proof that the De Koenigs were running a saloon called a labor-lyceum at which thousands of mutuel clerks, ushers, ticket sellers and special cops at the Roosevelt harness track were forced to spend $8 a week for a bottle of booze. It was a social error to drink this liquor which went back to the bar at the closing hour. The waitress girls were held to account, through their union, for the safe delivery of the bottles. The De Koenigs owned the waitresses and bartenders, too. Senior got an average of $73,000 a year for the last three years from the bar alone.

The AF of L, by order of the boss bum, George Meany, the national president, who tells President Eisenhower how "labor" feels about things, has picked up the charters of the Track Employes' Unions and sent in a receiver to run the rackets until further notice. The De Koenigs still own the engineers' charter.

All these union rackets were interlaced with crooked Republicen politics all over the state and Governor Dewey's remedial courses are now excusing past larcenies in which thieving Republican bosses wallowed with the grand abandon of Jersey Democrats in the same vulgarities on their side of the Hudson. The loot from the so-called welfare rackets is kissed good-bye with no thought of prosecution or recovery.

The spunk has gone out of journalism when a worthy daughter of Joseph Medill Patterson, having won a crusade, is willing to settle for a wan hope that the same crooked politicians who stood for and by the Koenigs for years, will ask God to help them all be better boys.

PITCHING HORSESHOES

By BILLY ROSE

TWO TO GET READY

I don't expect everyone to agree, but I think the most important letter ever set to paper by human hand was one received by Franklin Delano Roosevelt in October, 1939.

Because of this letter—it was only two paragraphs long—hundreds of thousands of American soldiers escaped death in Japan.

Because of this letter, better than 200,000,000 people in Europe are still on the free side of the Iron Curtain.

Because of this letter, we are currently stockpiling the hydrogen bomb—the weapon which may just possibly convince the men in the Kremlin that it would be suicide to attack us.

I am, of course, referring to the letter written by Dr. Albert Einstein to President Roosevelt in which he stated that it was possible "to set up a nuclear reaction in a large mass of uranium by which vast amounts of power and large quantities of radium-like elements would be generated." That this "could be achieved in the immediate future .... and that extremely powerful bombs of a new type may thus be constructed."

Dr. Einstein's letter persuaded the President to make funds available for the Manhattan Project which developed the A-bomb. Had the professor not written this letter, the giant firecracker might today be the exclusive property of those whose admitted aim is to take us over.

There is, of course, no telling what the ultimate effect of the Einstein letter will be. On the one hand, the weapon may take us into a war which will eliminate the cause of all wars—people. On the other, they may conceivably frighten a little sense into everybody's head, and end mass killing as a means of setting political or ideological arguments.

Whichever way the coin falls—and your guess is probably better than mine—there's no doubt that the most important letter ever written was the one penned by the Princeton wizard in 1939 .....

While we're discussing the most important this and that, it's my opinion that the most important military decision ever made was the one announced by President Eisenhower on January 12—that the United States would not hesitate to use all the weapons in its arsenal in case of further Communist aggression anywhere in the world.

In diplomatic language, Eisenhower informed anyone who might be listening that we wouldn't tolerate another Korea or Indochina; that if the Russians started another bonfire, be it in Siam or Sweden, we would level our fire extinguishers, not on the bonfire, but on the men who lit the matches.

It's my two-penny belief that if Hitler had been served with a similar notice before he marched into Czechoslovakia, he would have stayed put. And that Malenkov will think twice before bombing New York or Fort Worth now that he knows four hours later Moscow—and Malenkov—will be among those missing.

To take it a step further, I believe that, because of Ike's face-card-on-the-table pronunciamento, there's a good chance that no atomic weapon will ever again be used; that bacteriological bombs and the new poison gases will remain sealed in underground vaults; that, in time, be it years or decades, nations will get tired of stockpiling expensive stuff they're scared to use, and work out a double-cross-proof way of junking the whole silly mess.

When this happens—and few of us figure to be around if it doesn't—there will be no disputing that Eisenhower's recent statement of policy was the most important military decision ever made.

Bulgarian Reds Purged

Istanbul (AP)—Bulgaria's Communist party is less than half the size it was five years ago. Vulko Chervenkov, the country's Red prime minister, made this disclosure in a speech to the annual Congress of Bulgarian Communists. He belittled the drop from about 900,000 party members in 1949 to 423,000 at present—saying many had been expelled because they were not good Communists.

How do you pick the right suit to develop? In some hands there is no easy answer. Play the hand mentally to see what will happen with each possibility Then choose the line of play that gives you the best chance.

Today's hand furnishes a good example. West opens the ace of spades and then continues with another spade. You win the second trick in either hand, and now you must plan the rest of the play.

You have 11 easy tricks: five trumps in your own hand, one club ruff in dummy, three top hearts, and two top diamonds. You need one other trick to make your slam contract.

It is clear that you must establish a low card in one of the red suits as your twelfth trick. Which red suit should you tackle first?

If both suits break well, you will make your contract no matter how you play it. The task of the prudent declarer is to pick the line of play that will succeed if only one of the suits break favorably.

If you begin with the hearts, you soon discover the bad break. Unfortunately, however, it is now too late to bring in the diamonds. You must ruff diamonds twice in order to establish dummy's last card in the suit, and you cannot get to dummy often enough to establish this card and get back to cash it.

The right line of play is to begin on the diamonds. When both opponents follow to the first two rounds of diamonds, you know that the suit cannot break worse than 4-2. You therefore go ahead by ruffing a diamond, you get back to dummy with a heart, ruff another diamond, and re-enter dummy with a heart to cash dummy's last diamond.

If diamonds had broken worse than 4-2, you would discover this fact on the first or second round of the suit. There would still be time to switch to hearts in the hope that one ruff would establish dummy's heart.

In short, you can try for both suits if you begin with the diamonds. You can try for only one suit if you begin with the hearts.

50th Anniversary Of Blanton Company

Perhaps no better example of the improvements in the past 50 years in the methods of producing, handling and dispensing food products can be found than the evolution of the margarine industry during that period.

When The Blanton Company entered the field in 1904 the law provided that oleomargarine be packed in wooden butter tubs. Under the U. S. Internal Revenue Law of 1886, all margarine sold was colored and taxed at the factory at 2c per pound. In 1902 the law of 1886 was amended, increasing the tax on colored oleomargarine to 10c per pound. However, there was no change in the regulations regarding the packaging of oleomargarine. Once the top of the tub was removed for display purposes, the housewife had no way of distinguishing the brand of margarine or butter she was buying. The opportunities for mistakes or downright deception were scandalous, as were no less the unsanitary conditions under which both products were handled.

Perhaps the foremost step ever taken to provide maximum protection to American consumers, both in sanitation and in quality identification of margarine, was initiated by the Blanton Company. Immediately upon organization of the company in 1904, its founder, David A. Blanton, Sr., personally pleaded the cause of the consumer before the U. S. Commissioners of Internal Revenue in Washington, and in the face of strong opposition succeeded in getting a new regulation written and approved by the secretary of the treasury.

This was the regulation that revolutionized the margarine industry. Under it margarine is marked and branded at the factory and now reaches the consumer in the manufacturer's identified paraffined carton.

As soon as the new law went into effect, The Blanton Company introduced its now famous Creamo Brand Margarine. Historically, this makes Creamo the oldest margarine brand under original ownership in the industry today.

How do you pick the right suit to develop? In some hands there is no easy answer. Play the hand mentally to see what will happen with each possibility Then choose the line of play that gives you the best chance.

Today's hand furnishes a good example. West opens the ace of spades and then continues with another spade. You win the second trick in either hand, and now you must plan the rest of the play.

You have 11 easy tricks: five trumps in your own hand, one club ruff in dummy, three top hearts, and two top diamonds. You need one other trick to make your slam contract.

It is clear that you must establish a low card in one of the red suits as your twelfth trick. Which red suit should you tackle first?

If both suits break well, you will make your contract no matter how you play it. The task of the prudent declarer is to pick the line of play that will succeed if only one of the suits break favorably.

If you begin with the hearts, you soon discover the bad break. Unfortunately, however, it is now too late to bring in the diamonds. You must ruff diamonds twice in order to establish dummy's last card in the suit, and you cannot get to dummy often enough to establish this card and get back to cash it.

The right line of play is to begin on the diamonds. When both opponents follow to the first two rounds of diamonds, you know that the suit cannot break worse than 4-2. You therefore go ahead by ruffing a diamond, you get back to dummy with a heart, ruff another diamond, and re-enter dummy with a heart to cash dummy's last diamond.

If diamonds had broken worse than 4-2, you would discover this fact on the first or second round of the suit. There would still be time to switch to hearts in the hope that one ruff would establish dummy's heart.

In short, you can try for both suits if you begin with the diamonds. You can try for only one suit if you begin with the hearts.

50th Anniversary Of Blanton Company

Perhaps no better example of the improvements in the past 50 years in the methods of producing, handling and dispensing food products can be found than the evolution of the margarine industry during that period.

When The Blanton Company entered the field in 1904 the law provided that oleomargarine be packed in wooden butter tubs. Under the U. S. Internal Revenue Law of 1886, all margarine sold was colored and taxed at the factory at 2c per pound. In 1902 the law of 1886 was amended, increasing the tax on colored oleomargarine to 10c per pound. However, there was no change in the regulations regarding the packaging of oleomargarine. Once the top of the tub was removed for display purposes, the housewife had no way of distinguishing the brand of margarine or butter she was buying. The opportunities for mistakes or downright deception were scandalous, as were no less the unsanitary conditions under which both products were handled.

Perhaps the foremost step ever taken to provide maximum protection to American consumers, both in sanitation and in quality identification of margarine, was initiated by the Blanton Company. Immediately upon organization of the company in 1904, its founder, David A. Blanton, Sr., personally pleaded the cause of the consumer before the U. S. Commissioners of Internal Revenue in Washington, and in the face of strong opposition succeeded in getting a new regulation written and approved by the secretary of the treasury.

This was the regulation that revolutionized the margarine industry. Under it margarine is marked and branded at the factory and now reaches the consumer in the manufacturer's identified paraffined carton.

As soon as the new law went into effect, The Blanton Company introduced its now famous Creamo Brand Margarine. Historically, this makes Creamo the oldest margarine brand under original ownership in the industry today.

The McCarthy Story

(Sixth of 10 Articles)
By RELMAN MORIN

Washington, April 12 (AP)—Where does Sen. Joseph R. McCarthy get his information?

The answer is that in the four years since he first cried "Red" he has become a national, and even an international, private eye.

He has built a formidable intelligence system. It is based on a network of agents and informers, paid and unpaid, who dig up material from every corner of the United States, from confidential government files, even from foreign countries.

He has demonstrated time and again that he can quickly lay his hands on episodes—often long past—in the lives of men and women. His operation feeds on the skeleton in the closet, especially the political skeleton, but all kinds of skeletons interest him.

McCarthy has two main sources of information.

He employs a staff of agents, many of them former FBI men, who earn more working for him than they could for the government. He also hires, as he needs them, undercover operatives in foreign countries.

Has Amateur Tipsters, Too

In addition to these professionals, he receives "information" from a host of amateur tipsters and snoopers, anxious or disgruntled people—individuals he has never met, whose very names may be unknown to him. This is perhaps the most astonishing phase of the phenomenon of "McCarthyism."

His office has become a receptacle for the fears, suspicions, hates and prejudices of any army of these informers.

It is often asserted as well that McCarthy has agents among the employes of government offices. However, since he carefully protects his sources and informants, no solid evidence of this has emerged.

In any case, it is evident that he has access to some secret government documents and classified papers. How he gets them is his secret.

In his office he presides over a shadowy empire of personal histories . . . card-files cross-indexed as to names and cases, piles of dossiers, photographs, photographic copies, letters, newspaper clippings, memoranda.

Never Can Tell

He never knows what may be useful out of all this. He says that when he first brought his charges of Reds-in-government "I began to be swamped with tips; much of the stuff is worthless, but on the other hand some of it has proved very valuable."

An old newspaper clip, for example, came in handy recently.

Last month commentator Edward R. Murrow conducted a television program critical of McCarthy. The senator promptly replied. He said Murrow had been a member of the National Advisory Council of Moscow University, summer session back in 1935.

(Murrow said he had been assistant director of the Institute of International Education, which was an organization arranging student exchanges. He said the Russians themselves called off the summer session before it began.)

But the 19-year-old incident was in McCarthy's files. The clip had been sent him, long ago, by one of the many volunteer informers.

Has Foreign Agents

McCarthy makes no secret of the fact that he sometimes employs agents in other countries. He had one working out of Paris some years ago when he was centering his fire on the State Department. McCarthy said the material this man unearthed figured in some of his charges against State Department personnel.

He hired a detective in Shanghai who obtained photographic copies of five pages of police records. McCarthy laughs: "They were in Chinese .... I had to have the stuff translated."

He denied to his reporter that he ever gets any information directly from the FBI, although Sen. Fulbright (D-Ark.) has publicly expressed the belief that McCarthy has acess to material from FBI files.

In an interview McCarhy said: "The only time I ask for information is through the attorney general. By official letter we occasionally ask for name checks."

McCarthy's chief counsel, Roy Cohn, was present at the interview and added "We have never gotten an FBI file, and we have never gotten a tip from the FBI."

Nevertheless, some classified documents and government information of a secret nature somehow come into McCarthy's possession.

Reed Harris, formerly a top official in the International Information Administration (IIA), who was quizzed by McCarthy's committee, cites a personal experience.

McCarthy Had It

On the day before his closed session with the committee, Harris says, a message went from his office in Washington to the New York office of IIA.

It was transmitted, he says, by an electronic "scrambler." The "unscrambling" device was at the receiving end of the system.

Harris says that 24 hours later McCarthy had the message "in the clear," that is, contents known. He comments: "Only a few people are involved in the transmission of such messages. They are highly classified. Yet McCarthy had it."

Does McCarthy tap telephones? A former top aide to the senator—who asked not to be identified—said he doesn't believe so. He said this was not the practice while he was in McCarthy's office.

Harris, however, recalled a telephone conversation with a woman friend.

She Was 80

"She called me at my home one night . . . two hours later, one of McCarthy's agents was in her apartment house, asking the neighbors if they had ever seen me in her apartment, if I had been there late at night and so on."

Harris laughed. "The lady is 80 years old, which considerably surprised McCarthy's agent."

Even without any such cloak-and-dagger methods, McCarthy would have wide powers and resources.

He is chairman of the committee on government operations and of its permanent subcommittee on investigations. In his annual report he wrote: "This committee is charged with the investigation of the operations of all government departments at all levels, with a view to determine their economy and efficiency."

That covers a lot of ground.

Four Republican and three Democratic senators sit on the subcommittee. McCarthy became chairman through seniority, having been a member longer than any other Republican.

His Staff

His own staff and the subcommittee staff are, in effect, one and the same thing. He has 15 investigators and lawyers, 10 clerks and stenographers.

Most of the girls are pretty. (His wife, the former Jean Kerr, was one of his assistants before their marriage.) McCarthy takes a personal interest in them, remembers birthdays and anniversaries, sometimes with handsome checks.

The staff works at close quarters in the office, with desks jammed in among steel filing cabinets, and bulging boxes of mail everywhere. It comes in almost too fast to sort and file.

McCarthy, a driver, sometimes works around the clock. One of his former speech-writing assistants says "it's nothing for him to call in somebody at 12 or 1 o'clock in the morning and work through until dawn."

Makes Own Decisions

McCarthy considers all advice on cases, investigations and speeches, but then makes final decisions himself. The last draft of a speech is his.

The two key men in his operation are the chief counsel, Roy Cohn, and the chief of staff, Francis Carr, a former FBI agent. They direct the investigations, receive the day-to-day reports of the agents, brief McCarthy as to progress.

A case may start in any number of ways.

A great many come from tips. Some are referred to McCarthy's committee from other Senate committees. Others develop from leads that appear in the investigation of a totally different case.

Thus McCarthy is in a position to choose from a wide range of possibilities whatever he thinks is especially desirable to investigate. He reported that last year 445 preliminary inquiries were dropped "without need for extensive investigation." That could mean they led nowhere, or that action already had been taken on them. The report cites another 157 which were investigated.

Interrupts Honeymoon

He suddenly became so interested in the Ft. Monmouth (N. J.) radar center that he interrupted his honeymoon in the West Indies, hastened home and opened an inquiry.

Actually, the army already had suspended some civilian employes at Ft. Monmouth for security reasons. Presumably, McCarthy's investigators passed this word to him.

Anyway, McCarthy said the situation had "all the earmarks of extremely dangerous espionage." Secretary of the Army Stevens denied this and wrote in a letter to Sen. Ellender (D.-La.): "Insofar as the army has thus far been able to determine, there is no current espionage or other subversive activity at Ft. Monmouth."

The Monmouth controversy developed while the three Democratic members of the subcommittee were not serving on it. They had walked off, months before, in protest against a ruling by the GOP majority that gave McCarthy the sole right to hire and fire staff employes.

Unhappy Long Time

Later, when McCarthy and the Republican senators agreed to a new set of rules, the Democrats returned.

But they had been unhappy for a long time about McCarthy's methods of operating. They criticized his one-man hearings and claimed that in several cases they had not been properly briefed about the facts in some investigations.

As for the "one-man hearing" criticism, McCarthy contends they are one-man only because other members fail to show up. Some members say, however, that McCarthy sometimes calls a hearing on such short notice that they can't possibly get there. He also sometimes makes quick trips to hold hearings in other cities, and not all members can arrange their affairs to accompany him.

The procedure is to provide the subcommittee, from time to time, with one-page summaries of the findings in cases under inquiry. Sen. Jackson (D-Wash.), a subcommittee member, said the summaries "were not too complete, although they've been getting better lately."

Senators Can't Check

Jackson said the other subcommittee members must rely to a considerable degree on the version of a case as set forth by McCarthy's agents. The senators do not have the means to check everything his investigators report.

So the questions arose:

Does McCarthys' staff honestly seek information, pursuing the facts with an open mind? Or is an inquiry conducted, and the findings presented, so as to "prove" what McCarthy wants "proved?"

"If the staff goes out to try to prove something," Jackson said, "based on a theory of their own, without regard to objectivity, then you can't have a fair and impartial hearing. The fact may not be at all as they are reported to the American people."

Jackson cited, as an example, conflicting testimony over the location of two prpposed radio transmitters for the Voice of America.

He said McCarthy's staff quoted only the opinions of technicians who held that the sites for the transmitters were unsuitable. Later, Jackson said, he discovered that the voice consulted engineers from the Radio Corp. of America and Massachusetts Institute of Technology who gave opposite opinions.

Tries to Determine

Jackson said he now is trying to determine whether this information was deliberately withheld from the committee—to build up evidence of an alleged conspiracy.

He said "the hearings may have brought out indications of mismanagement or inefficiency, but they certainly didn't show evidence of any conspiracy."

McCarthy insisted there had been a "unanimity of opinion" at one time about the sites, but he didn't explain further.

Jackson also said he objects to the way Roy Cohn questioned witnesses in the case of Mrs. Anie Lee Moss, army code room employe. He said Cohn's questions were so framed as to cast suspicion on her.

Jackson said he himself put some questions which elicited answers that put her in a more favorable light. Mrs. Moss denied under oath that she was a Communist and has returned to her job pending completion of a Pentagon investigation.

Can Use Rules as Block

Criticisms also have been leveled at McCarthy for his tactics in both closed and public hearings. Under the new rules the three Democratic senators can block a public hearing pending a vote by the full committee.

Likewise, McCarthy has surrendered the authority to be the sole judge of who is hired, and fired on his staff. It now takes a committee majority.

To these degrees, at least, his power has been somewhat curtailed by recent developments and rising opposition.

How much does McCarthy's investigative work cost? His annual report showed that he spent $193,000 out of a $200,000 appropriation in the 12 months ended Jan. 31, 1953.

For the 12 months ending next Jan. 31 he received an appropriation of $214,000. The extra $14,000 was to provide Democratic subcommittee members with their own counsel and part-time clerical help and to pay the minority members' incidental expenses.

LIQUIDITY

Far too often, executors charged with the responsibilities of estate-settling must sell sound assets at distressed prices.

The late Thomas W. Lamont, dean of American bankers and head of the international banking firm of J. P. Morgan, bequeathed millions of dollars to institutions, societies and individuals without making proper provisions for such payments.

As a result, 25,000 shares of Morgan stock had to be sold on an unwilling market. The shares sold off $50 each. Needless losses of more than a million dollars were taken because of the inadequacies of his will.

Of course, the bargain hunters who picked up the shares rejoiced over this situation. Moveover, they are constantly hoping that other persons will leave bad wills so that more bargains will come into the market.

A strange psyohology settles down on many well-to-do people. They often become suspicious, at the age of 60 or 70, of anyone who in all sincerity offers suggestions aimed at conserving estates in these high-tax days. Pride and arrogance are frequently written into wills to the detriment of everybody concerned.

It is not uncommon for a wealthy man to die insolvent. How can that be?

Well, the tax man is a cruel master. He may say that nonliquid assets are worth a million dollars when they can't be sold for half that. And in wills there may be clauses giving away far more money than can be realized by selling the estate's assets.

So, by the time the tax collector has been paid and other just debts settled, there may not be enough money to go around. Many persons die every year leaving wills with provisions that can't be carried out.

When the average well-to-do person reaches the age of 70, he should have a careful inventory of all his assets made periodically. Then he should call in a tax expert who will advise him of the claims against his estate, should anything happen to him.

With such knowledge at hand, he should see to it that ample liquid assets are in his estate to pay all tax claims and such cash bequests as are included in his will. Many people at 50 know that they will die well-to-do. That is a good time to take out a sizable insurance policy to cover tax costs.

For 20 years I have kept in my files newspaper records of wealthy people who have left insolvent estates. It is incredible. A millionaire can become very stubborn. He knows he is wealthy. And his wealth causes him occasionally to flaunt all laws directed against his riches. So he dies, leaving a poorly planned will.

Liquidity is a mighty word to hundreds of Americans. That means that all persons leaving wealth and property should see to it that readily marketable values that will bring one hundred cents on a dollar be resident in an estate.

It is far better for a man of 70 to sell an unmarketable value for a fair price than it is for an executor to sell it at auction years later. These are brutal truths, but they need to be said to thousands of people.

Thomas W. Lamont should have left Morgan shares and not dollars to his beneficiaries. Had this been done the recipients of his generosity would have been richly rewarded and the executors would have saved the estate hundreds of thousands of dollars.

The McCarthy Story

(Sixth of 10 Articles)
By RELMAN MORIN

Washington, April 12 (AP)—Where does Sen. Joseph R. McCarthy get his information?

The answer is that in the four years since he first cried "Red" he has become a national, and even an international, private eye.

He has built a formidable intelligence system. It is based on a network of agents and informers, paid and unpaid, who dig up material from every corner of the United States, from confidential government files, even from foreign countries.

He has demonstrated time and again that he can quickly lay his hands on episodes—often long past—in the lives of men and women. His operation feeds on the skeleton in the closet, especially the political skeleton, but all kinds of skeletons interest him.

McCarthy has two main sources of information.

He employs a staff of agents, many of them former FBI men, who earn more working for him than they could for the government. He also hires, as he needs them, undercover operatives in foreign countries.

Has Amateur Tipsters, Too

In addition to these professionals, he receives "information" from a host of amateur tipsters and snoopers, anxious or disgruntled people—individuals he has never met, whose very names may be unknown to him. This is perhaps the most astonishing phase of the phenomenon of "McCarthyism."

His office has become a receptacle for the fears, suspicions, hates and prejudices of any army of these informers.

It is often asserted as well that McCarthy has agents among the employes of government offices. However, since he carefully protects his sources and informants, no solid evidence of this has emerged.

In any case, it is evident that he has access to some secret government documents and classified papers. How he gets them is his secret.

In his office he presides over a shadowy empire of personal histories . . . card-files cross-indexed as to names and cases, piles of dossiers, photographs, photographic copies, letters, newspaper clippings, memoranda.

Never Can Tell

He never knows what may be useful out of all this. He says that when he first brought his charges of Reds-in-government "I began to be swamped with tips; much of the stuff is worthless, but on the other hand some of it has proved very valuable."

An old newspaper clip, for example, came in handy recently.

Last month commentator Edward R. Murrow conducted a television program critical of McCarthy. The senator promptly replied. He said Murrow had been a member of the National Advisory Council of Moscow University, summer session back in 1935.

(Murrow said he had been assistant director of the Institute of International Education, which was an organization arranging student exchanges. He said the Russians themselves called off the summer session before it began.)

But the 19-year-old incident was in McCarthy's files. The clip had been sent him, long ago, by one of the many volunteer informers.

Has Foreign Agents

McCarthy makes no secret of the fact that he sometimes employs agents in other countries. He had one working out of Paris some years ago when he was centering his fire on the State Department. McCarthy said the material this man unearthed figured in some of his charges against State Department personnel.

He hired a detective in Shanghai who obtained photographic copies of five pages of police records. McCarthy laughs: "They were in Chinese .... I had to have the stuff translated."

He denied to his reporter that he ever gets any information directly from the FBI, although Sen. Fulbright (D-Ark.) has publicly expressed the belief that McCarthy has acess to material from FBI files.

In an interview McCarhy said: "The only time I ask for information is through the attorney general. By official letter we occasionally ask for name checks."

McCarthy's chief counsel, Roy Cohn, was present at the interview and added "We have never gotten an FBI file, and we have never gotten a tip from the FBI."

Nevertheless, some classified documents and government information of a secret nature somehow come into McCarthy's possession.

Reed Harris, formerly a top official in the International Information Administration (IIA), who was quizzed by McCarthy's committee, cites a personal experience.

McCarthy Had It

On the day before his closed session with the committee, Harris says, a message went from his office in Washington to the New York office of IIA.

It was transmitted, he says, by an electronic "scrambler." The "unscrambling" device was at the receiving end of the system.

Harris says that 24 hours later McCarthy had the message "in the clear," that is, contents known. He comments: "Only a few people are involved in the transmission of such messages. They are highly classified. Yet McCarthy had it."

Does McCarthy tap telephones? A former top aide to the senator—who asked not to be identified—said he doesn't believe so. He said this was not the practice while he was in McCarthy's office.

Harris, however, recalled a telephone conversation with a woman friend.

She Was 80

"She called me at my home one night . . . two hours later, one of McCarthy's agents was in her apartment house, asking the neighbors if they had ever seen me in her apartment, if I had been there late at night and so on."

Harris laughed. "The lady is 80 years old, which considerably surprised McCarthy's agent."

Even without any such cloak-and-dagger methods, McCarthy would have wide powers and resources.

He is chairman of the committee on government operations and of its permanent subcommittee on investigations. In his annual report he wrote: "This committee is charged with the investigation of the operations of all government departments at all levels, with a view to determine their economy and efficiency."

That covers a lot of ground.

Four Republican and three Democratic senators sit on the subcommittee. McCarthy became chairman through seniority, having been a member longer than any other Republican.

His Staff

His own staff and the subcommittee staff are, in effect, one and the same thing. He has 15 investigators and lawyers, 10 clerks and stenographers.

Most of the girls are pretty. (His wife, the former Jean Kerr, was one of his assistants before their marriage.) McCarthy takes a personal interest in them, remembers birthdays and anniversaries, sometimes with handsome checks.

The staff works at close quarters in the office, with desks jammed in among steel filing cabinets, and bulging boxes of mail everywhere. It comes in almost too fast to sort and file.

McCarthy, a driver, sometimes works around the clock. One of his former speech-writing assistants says "it's nothing for him to call in somebody at 12 or 1 o'clock in the morning and work through until dawn."

Makes Own Decisions

McCarthy considers all advice on cases, investigations and speeches, but then makes final decisions himself. The last draft of a speech is his.

The two key men in his operation are the chief counsel, Roy Cohn, and the chief of staff, Francis Carr, a former FBI agent. They direct the investigations, receive the day-to-day reports of the agents, brief McCarthy as to progress.

A case may start in any number of ways.

A great many come from tips. Some are referred to McCarthy's committee from other Senate committees. Others develop from leads that appear in the investigation of a totally different case.

Thus McCarthy is in a position to choose from a wide range of possibilities whatever he thinks is especially desirable to investigate. He reported that last year 445 preliminary inquiries were dropped "without need for extensive investigation." That could mean they led nowhere, or that action already had been taken on them. The report cites another 157 which were investigated.

Interrupts Honeymoon

He suddenly became so interested in the Ft. Monmouth (N. J.) radar center that he interrupted his honeymoon in the West Indies, hastened home and opened an inquiry.

Actually, the army already had suspended some civilian employes at Ft. Monmouth for security reasons. Presumably, McCarthy's investigators passed this word to him.

Anyway, McCarthy said the situation had "all the earmarks of extremely dangerous espionage." Secretary of the Army Stevens denied this and wrote in a letter to Sen. Ellender (D.-La.): "Insofar as the army has thus far been able to determine, there is no current espionage or other subversive activity at Ft. Monmouth."

The Monmouth controversy developed while the three Democratic members of the subcommittee were not serving on it. They had walked off, months before, in protest against a ruling by the GOP majority that gave McCarthy the sole right to hire and fire staff employes.

Unhappy Long Time

Later, when McCarthy and the Republican senators agreed to a new set of rules, the Democrats returned.

But they had been unhappy for a long time about McCarthy's methods of operating. They criticized his one-man hearings and claimed that in several cases they had not been properly briefed about the facts in some investigations.

As for the "one-man hearing" criticism, McCarthy contends they are one-man only because other members fail to show up. Some members say, however, that McCarthy sometimes calls a hearing on such short notice that they can't possibly get there. He also sometimes makes quick trips to hold hearings in other cities, and not all members can arrange their affairs to accompany him.

The procedure is to provide the subcommittee, from time to time, with one-page summaries of the findings in cases under inquiry. Sen. Jackson (D-Wash.), a subcommittee member, said the summaries "were not too complete, although they've been getting better lately."

Senators Can't Check

Jackson said the other subcommittee members must rely to a considerable degree on the version of a case as set forth by McCarthy's agents. The senators do not have the means to check everything his investigators report.

So the questions arose:

Does McCarthys' staff honestly seek information, pursuing the facts with an open mind? Or is an inquiry conducted, and the findings presented, so as to "prove" what McCarthy wants "proved?"

"If the staff goes out to try to prove something," Jackson said, "based on a theory of their own, without regard to objectivity, then you can't have a fair and impartial hearing. The fact may not be at all as they are reported to the American people."

Jackson cited, as an example, conflicting testimony over the location of two proposed radio transmitters for the Voice of America.

He said McCarthy's staff quoted only the opinions of technicians who held that the sites for the transmitters were unsuitable. Later, Jackson said, he discovered that the voice consulted engineers from the Radio Corp. of America and Massachusetts Institute of Technology who gave opposite opinions.

Tries to Determine

Jackson said he now is trying to determine whether this information was deliberately withheld from the committee—to build up evidence of an alleged conspiracy.

He said "the hearings may have brought out indications of mismanagement or inefficiency, but they certainly didn't show evidence of any conspiracy."

McCarthy insisted there had been a "unanimity of opinion" at one time about the sites, but he didn't explain further.

Jackson also said he objects to the way Roy Cohn questioned witnesses in the case of Mrs. Anie Lee Moss, army code room employe. He said Cohn's questions were so framed as to cast suspicion on her.

Jackson said he himself put some questions which elicited answers that put her in a more favorable light. Mrs. Moss denied under oath that she was a Communist and has returned to her job pending completion of a Pentagon investigation.

Can Use Rules as Block

Criticisms also have been leveled at McCarthy for his tactics in both closed and public hearings. Under the new rules the three Democratic senators can block a public hearing pending a vote by the full committee.

Likewise, McCarthy has surrendered the authority to be the sole judge of who is hired, and fired on his staff. It now takes a committee majority.

To these degrees, at least, his power has been somewhat curtailed by recent developments and rising opposition.

How much does McCarthy's investigative work cost? His annual report showed that he spent $193,000 out of a $200,000 appropriation in the 12 months ended Jan. 31, 1953.

For the 12 months ending next Jan. 31 he received an appropriation of $214,000. The extra $14,000 was to provide Democratic subcommittee members with their own counsel and part-time clerical help and to pay the minority members' incidental expenses.

LIQUIDITY

Far too often, executors charged with the responsibilities of estate-settling must sell sound assets at distressed prices.

The late Thomas W. Lamont, dean of American bankers and head of the international banking firm of J. P. Morgan, bequeathed millions of dollars to institutions, societies and individuals without making proper provisions for such payments.

As a result, 25,000 shares of Morgan stock had to be sold on an unwilling market. The shares sold off $50 each. Needless losses of more than a million dollars were taken because of the inadequacies of his will.

Of course, the bargain hunters who picked up the shares rejoiced over this situation. Moveover, they are constantly hoping that other persons will leave bad wills so that more bargains will come into the market.

About Our Own Kids

By FRANK TRIPP

The champion of another's newspaper phrase, "Go West, young man," publicized it into a slogan, and sent countless youth to fame and fortune. It was positive advice, something for youth to do.

Yet Horace Greeley didn't know 100 years ago, when American journalism also was young, that restless youth, with no West to conquer, would one day be asking, well into its teens, "What shall I do, mother?"

Likely there isn't a newspaper in the land that hasn't been accused of misunderstanding modern youth. Perhaps there isn't a parent who hasn't somehow been likewise accused.

This is so prevalent that oldsters, with equal unfairness, have come to lament the "youth problem" as a hopeless burden, born of moral decadence and world chaos; something new, contrasting with the "good old days." As to that, we shall presently see.

It could be the too frequent expression of this false notion that makes youth strike back at "old fogies."

AS REGARDS newspapers, we are thinking of the defensive attitude which so often prompts charges of antagonism to youth generally, because the misdeeds of a single youth, or group of youths, get unfavorably into the news. What developed this relatively recent martyrdom and class resentment?

The youth of today aproaches the man of yesterday. He is through college when Greeley's youth entered. He has been exposed to more education, sophistication and worldliness at 16 than had most first voters a century ago. He is a different youth, by our own connivance.

COULDN'T WE be all wrong about our kids? Is the uneasiness, dissatisfaction, rebellion among those we call "youth" the result of our refusal to accept their new status? We expose them to all of the tools and temptations of the adult, still try to keep taut the apron strings.

Maybe there are no youth any more, just children and adults. Maybe all of the problem could be solved by admitting youth into the lodge in good standing; there at once to enjoy or suffer the consequences of good or bad citizenship. Surely we take far greater risk when we admit assassins and Reds to our freedoms and our ballot.

ON AT LEAST one score we are way off base; when we charge to our youth some new and shiftless demand upon their elders and society. For the great Greeley, with all of his interest in youth, wrote in 1850:

"There appears to be a class of young men and women in the present generation who, either from sheer laziness or indigence of brains, beg ideas and decisions for the regulation of their daily life from other people, precisely as they would take their shoes to be cobbled.

"These people are generally full of lofty imaginings and unrest. Like Antony, they have immortal longings in them; whereupon they perch themselves complacently, with folded hands, on the pillar of their discontent, and despise men who have the will and common sense to work heartily at whatever is set before them, whether it be to their liking or not."

"THE EDITOR of a newspaper is usually selected by this feebleminded generation to bear the burden of their incapacity," continued Editor Greeley.

"There is not a day when he has not the private affairs of some helpless innocent placed in his hands, with requests for aid, from assistance in matrimony to the loan of a five dollar note.

"He is not bound to furnish either meat for men or milk for babies. Editorially he is bound to urge upon these helpless aspirants the truth of the old saw, that he is best served who serves himself."

Thus spoke a sage 100 years ago. So let's be honest, pop; has human nature really changed so much, except as our own faults and indulgence changed it?

Youths Run Church

Santa Ana, Calif. (AP) — The minister wears an open collared sport shirt and speaks in a youthful urgency. He is 23 years old. The assistant pastor, 21, takes charge of the 75-year-old pipe organ and plays in the church orchestra. The orchestra itself is composed of 15 to 25 youths ranging in age from 10 to 16. The older boys teach the younger ones how to play. The members receive no pay. The church, built in 1898, is a simple white walled building with a belfry. It is called the Country Church of Talbert. The town is unincorporated and has just 750 citizens. The entire services and all its policies are carried out by young people.

Do You Remember

By SOPHIE MILLER

This morning someone left on my doorstep an interesting book, heavily illustrated, 14 and a half inches wide by 18 inches high and in excellent condition, although published back in 1875. It is called County Atlas of Orange, New York, with engravings and prints by J. B. Beers and Co. of 30 Vesey street, New York. It gives the town plans of some 18 towns in Orange county and the plans of 48 villages with names of the landowners in 1875. Perhaps some folks now living in Kingston and vicinity who read this column and are originally from Orange county would be interested to see pages of this book. It also has some 60 full page prints of some of the fashionable residences of those days. Most of them are so well built, according to the pictures that no doubt many of them are still standing today.

There is an excellent lithograph of Washington's Headquarters in Newburgh taken during a snowfall. The artist must have been fond of horses, for there are horses and buggies in every picture and of many various types. In one, there is even a lady and gentleman out on a morning gallop. The gentleman wears a high hat, and the lady rides, side-saddle. Many of the residences had their own private lakes, like S. R. Weeks, wheelwright, Highland Mills, Town of Monroe of Orange county.

In the history of Orange county one item on Deer Park may be of interest to the present day farmers who drive tractors and have the latest farm equipment. This item was reprinted from 1760. "At that time the farmers plowed with a beam which had a wheel at each end. A small wheel at one end rode on top of the sod and a large wheel at the other end of the beam turned in the furrow. Wheat and rye were cut with a two foot knife fastened to a wooden handle. In place of a rake, they used an iron hook. The grain was thrashed by the tramping of horses or oxen and later cleaned by a large hand fan, made of willow rods. The wagons were made of wood, without even an iron hoop around the wheels but the rim was driven full of wooden pins to make them durable. The harness was made of flax and tow," so said this 1875 Atlas about farming in Orange county in 1760. No doubt the same methods were used in Ulster county. According to this author, "tradition says that a part of Minisink was settled by a company of Holland miners at a very early date, so early in fact, that when found by settlers from New York and Pennsylvania, some could only be understood in the Indian language."

Although I thought wooden bridges were all the go back in 1875, still this book shows an excellent illustration of an Iron Suspension Bridge at Cornwall, over the stream, Moodna. For those who are interested in various horse and buggies of the 1870's this book is full of them. In one picture alone, there are four two-horse buggies, all different, some seat two, some seat four, some are completely covered and some without covers. There is also a picture of the Parry House at Highland Falls which is about a mile from West Point on the west bank of the Hudson. It's a five story chauteau style building. Perhaps it is still standing.

Editor, The Freeman:

The war in Indochina can be won, militarily and politically, without direct intervention by the U. S. This can only be done if the following steps are immediately taken i.e.:

1st. The French government will have to take steps to show the Vietnamese that they are to have self government under a French Protectorate which will insure better economic conditions for the people of French Indochina.

2nd. American economic and war materials, including especially aeroplanes and technical assistance should be used to blockade all sources from which the Communist Viet Minh forces of Indochina are receiving the wherewithall to continue the war.

3rd. The French should maintain an intensive training campaign to so strengthen the anti-Communist forces that as the country progresses toward self-government, it will be preparing to fight its own battles, to drive out the Communists.

There can be no hope for any lasting peace through negotiation either at the coming Geneva Conference or in any way but the building of a stronger force and economy than the Communists could create in Indochina, including whatever help the Communists could give to their sympathizers.

The determination and desire of The American Colonists to gain their independence from England under the circumstances much less promising than those of The Indochinese proves beyond a doubt that when there is a choice for a people to govern themselves and with the added incentive of continually better economic life, victory is assured.

Why We Say--

CONSTIPATED?

"I can't afford to lose any time at work. But when I was constipated, I just couldn't work because no laxative gave me the relief I wanted.

"Then a friend told me about Sal Hepatica. So I took some the next time I woke up with that headachy, logy feeling due to constipation. And, let me tell you, it was just what I was looking for. Why I felt like my old self again within about an hour!"

Yes, take sparkling Sal Hepatica before breakfast and feel fine again . . . usually within an hour. Or, take it in the evening one-half hour before supper and feel fine again by bedtime! Sweetens sour stomach, too! So keep Sal Hepatica handy in your medicine chest.

Tydol Introduces New 'Sky High Power' Gas

New York, April 9—The Tide Water Associated Oil Co. last night launches its campaign to introduce its new "Sky High Power" Tydol Flying A Ethel Gasoline in the eastern market, it was announced today.

According to Eugene F. McCabe, vice president in charge of the company's eastern division sales, the new gasoline is "the finest, most powerful and most efficient motor fuel we have ever produced. By actual road test—not laboratory tests alone — our new Sky High Power has superior anti-knock and anti-stall qualities, delivers more power and mileage, and provides smoother idling, quicker warm-up, instant acceleration, and cleaner engines. It gives the highest road performance during all kinds of weather and in all climates, to both older cars on the road as well as today's modern high-compression engines," he said.

In launching the gasoline campaign, Mr. McCabe also announced that the company will soon introduce a "great new motor oil in our eastern marketing area."

The new products will be presented to Tydol Flying A dealers at more than 60 dealers meetings to be held throughout the east, beginning April 26.

Blood Price Paid

Aden (AP)—If a man kills another man, in Al-Madarah village, in Aden's western protectorate, he must pay 700 Maria Theresa dollars as blood price. But if the killer is a woman, a 50 per cent discount is granted. The rule applied recently to a woman who stabbed to death a boy and a girl, the brother and sister respectively of another woman whom the murderess' husband wanted to take as second wife.

Stewart's Opens Two Local Stores

Stewart's Ice Cream Company of Saratoga Springs, today announced the opening of two branch stores in Kingston, the first stores to be established by that company in this area.

One of the stores is located at 344 Broadway near the Kingston High School, and the other at 14 St. James street. The Broadway store is owned by Samuel T. Kwasnowski, a native of Kingston.

The two Kingston stores brings the number of Stewart's Ice Cream outlets to 49. Of these 46 are in New York state, two in Vermont and one in Pittsfield, Mass. This brings to a total of 23 the number of new stores that Stewart's has established during the past year. There are three stores in Albany, five in Schenectady, three in Saratoga, two in Glens Falls in addition to the out of state stores.

The new Kingston stores offer all the exclusive features of Stewart stores everywhere including the unique make-your-own-sundae, one of the most talked-about innovations in the ice cream industry. This feature has attracted widespread interest because it permits the patron to make his own sundae, as the name indicates, choosing toppings from a self-service tray placed on the counter for that purpose.

The Kingston stores, like all complete Stewart branches, provide sufficient cabinet space to carry one of the largest varieties of ice cream and sherbert flavors available anywhere. The company prides itself on the fact that it manufactures more than 101 different flavors in the course of a year.

Argentina and Chile have large populations of Irish descent.

About Our Own Kids

By FRANK TRIPP

The champion of another's newspaper phrase, "Go West, young man," publicized it into a slogan, and sent countless youth to fame and fortune. It was positive advice, something for youth to do.

Yet Horace Greeley didn't know 100 years ago, when American journalism also was young, that restless youth, with no West to conquer, would one day be asking, well into its teens, "What shall I do, mother?"

Likely there isn't a newspaper in the land that hasn't been accused of misunderstanding modern youth. Perhaps there isn't a parent who hasn't somehow been likewise accused.

This is so prevalent that oldsters, with equal unfairness, have come to lament the "youth problem" as a hopeless burden, born of moral decadence and world chaos; something new, contrasting with the "good old days." As to that, we shall presently see.

It could be the too frequent expression of this false notion that makes youth strike back at "old fogies."

AS REGARDS newspapers, we are thinking of the defensive attitude which so often prompts charges of antagonism to youth generally, because the misdeeds of a single youth, or group of youths, get unfavorably into the news. What developed this relatively recent martyrdom and class resentment?

The youth of today aproaches the man of yesterday. He is through college when Greeley's youth entered. He has been exposed to more education, sophistication and worldliness at 16 than had most first voters a century ago. He is a different youth, by our own connivance.

COULDN'T WE be all wrong about our kids? Is the uneasiness, dissatisfaction, rebellion among those we call "youth" the result of our refusal to accept their new status? We expose them to all of the tools and temptations of the adult, still try to keep taut the apron strings.

Maybe there are no youth any more, just children and adults. Maybe all of the problem could be solved by admitting youth into the lodge in good standing; there at once to enjoy or suffer the consequences of good or bad citizenship. Surely we take far greater risk when we admit assassins and Reds to our freedoms and our ballot.

ON AT LEAST one score we are way off base; when we charge to our youth some new and shiftless demand upon their elders and society. For the great Greeley, with all of his interest in youth, wrote in 1850:

"There appears to be a class of young men and women in the present generation who, either from sheer laziness or indigence of brains, beg ideas and decisions for the regulation of their daily life from other people, precisely as they would take their shoes to be cobbled.

"These people are generally full of lofty imaginings and unrest. Like Antony, they have immortal longings in them; whereupon they perch themselves complacently, with folded hands, on the pillar of their discontent, and despise men who have the will and common sense to work heartily at whatever is set before them, whether it be to their liking or not."

"THE EDITOR of a newspaper is usually selected by this feebleminded generation to bear the burden of their incapacity," continued Editor Greeley.

"There is not a day when he has not the private affairs of some helpless innocent placed in his hands, with requests for aid, from assistance in matrimony to the loan of a five dollar note.

"He is not bound to furnish either meat for men or milk for babies. Editorially he is bound to urge upon these helpless aspirants the truth of the old saw, that he is best served who serves himself."

Thus spoke a sage 100 years ago. So let's be honest, pop; has human nature really changed so much, except as our own faults and indulgence changed it?

Youths Run Church

Santa Ana, Calif. (AP) — The minister wears an open collared sport shirt and speaks in a youthful urgency. He is 23 years old. The assistant pastor, 21, takes charge of the 75-year-old pipe organ and plays in the church orchestra. The orchestra itself is composed of 15 to 25 youths ranging in age from 10 to 16. The older boys teach the younger ones how to play. The members receive no pay. The church, built in 1898, is a simple white walled building with a belfry. It is called the Country Church of Talbert. The town is unincorporated and has just 750 citizens. The entire services and all its policies are carried out by young people.

Do You Remember

By SOPHIE MILLER

This morning someone left on my doorstep an interesting book, heavily illustrated, 14 and a half inches wide by 18 inches high and in excellent condition, although published back in 1875. It is called County Atlas of Orange, New York, with engravings and prints by J. B. Beers and Co. of 30 Vesey street, New York. It gives the town plans of some 18 towns in Orange county and the plans of 48 villages with names of the landowners in 1875. Perhaps some folks now living in Kingston and vicinity who read this column and are originally from Orange county would be interested to see pages of this book. It also has some 60 full page prints of some of the fashionable residences of those days. Most of them are so well built, according to the pictures that no doubt many of them are still standing today.

There is an excellent lithograph of Washington's Headquarters in Newburgh taken during a snowfall. The artist must have been fond of horses, for there are horses and buggies in every picture and of many various types. In one, there is even a lady and gentleman out on a morning gallop. The gentleman wears a high hat, and the lady rides, side-saddle. Many of the residences had their own private lakes, like S. R. Weeks, wheelwright, Highland Mills, Town of Monroe of Orange county.

In the history of Orange county one item on Deer Park may be of interest to the present day farmers who drive tractors and have the latest farm equipment. This item was reprinted from 1760. "At that time the farmers plowed with a beam which had a wheel at each end. A small wheel at one end rode on top of the sod and a large wheel at the other end of the beam turned in the furrow. Wheat and rye were cut with a two foot knife fastened to a wooden handle. In place of a rake, they used an iron hook. The grain was thrashed by the tramping of horses or oxen and later cleaned by a large hand fan, made of willow rods. The wagons were made of wood, without even an iron hoop around the wheels but the rim was driven full of wooden pins to make them durable. The harness was made of flax and tow," so said this 1875 Atlas about farming in Orange county in 1760. No doubt the same methods were used in Ulster county. According to this author, "tradition says that a part of Minisink was settled by a company of Holland miners at a very early date, so early in fact, that when found by settlers from New York and Pennsylvania, some could only be understood in the Indian language."

Although I thought wooden bridges were all the go back in 1875, still this book shows an excellent illustration of an Iron Suspension Bridge at Cornwall, over the stream, Moodna. For those who are interested in various horse and buggies of the 1870's this book is full of them. In one picture alone, there are four two-horse buggies, all different, some seat two, some seat four, some are completely covered and some without covers. There is also a picture of the Parry House at Highland Falls which is about a mile from West Point on the west bank of the Hudson. It's a five story chauteau style building. Perhaps it is still standing.

Amateur, Commercial Exhibitors Enter YW Annual Hobby Show

Reports from committee members at Thursday night's meeting indicated that the 1954 Hudson Valley Hobby Show, sponsored by the Kingston YWCA, will draw exhibitors from a wide area. The fifth annual show will be staged at the municipal auditorium opening Tuesday, May 11 at 7 p. m. and continuing for three nights until 10 p. m.

Mrs. Joseph D. Scholar, Jr. general chairman, reports, "sixteen amateur hobbyists, and five commercial exhibitors have contracted for the 10 by 12 foot booths." A number of others are being processed by committee members, leaving a limited number of booths still available. The YWCA office may be contacted by potential exhibitors, both amateur and commercial.

Tentative plans were announced by the decorations committee to carry out the nation-wide theme of the YWCA's Centennial observance. Booths constructed by husbands of YWCA members will again be in use this year as well as the accessory drapes made by members.

A special effort is being made by the committee to contact a number of hobbyists who have used the "do it yourself" idea in improvements to their homes or furnishings. These would be of special interest to men who constitute a good part of the audience on each of the three nights.

Advance tickets sales chairman, Mrs. John Glennon announced that tickets are available and would be distributed to members within the next week.

'THE GOOD OLD DAYS'

Of course, we all know that medical science in grandmother's day wasn't what it is today. But can you imagine a tuberculosis patient taking a glass of whiskey as medicine? It seems hard to believe. Back in "the good old days" some doctors really thought alcohol could cure TB. It was only one of many "cures" that sound strange to us.

In the early days of this century the state of knowledge about TB was confused, to say the least. The germ that causes TB had been discovered. What to do about the disease itself was a subject for hot debate among the doctors.

The use of alcohol in TB treatment dated back many years. Some doctors prescribed just a little wine as tonic or to stimulate the appetite. Their patients needed a hearty appetite, since they were often urged to eat huge meals with between-meal snacks of quarts of milk and dozens of eggs. Other doctors had their patients drinking a pint of whiskey a day.

Most of the physicians who recommended alcohol did it because they sincerely believed it would help their patients. Some, perhaps, were willing to try anything. Others, believing that TB was a hopeless disease, felt the patient might as well drown his sorrows.

But the picture began to change. In 1904 a group of doctors and laymen who refused to believe that TB was hopeless founded an organization to study TB, to spread knowledge about it, and to encourage its prevention and scientific treatment. Today, 50 years since the founding of the National Tuberculosis Association, we know that TB can be cured with good medical treatment. Drugs of proved value and surgery are being used with rest to restore more and more patients to health. The disease has not been defeated, but the days of hysteria and hopelessness are over.

WHEN ASKED TO CONTRIBUTE

A reader asks: "Please tell me how does one decline, across a table of four or five women, when asked to contribute to the pet charity of one of them—especially when the others all say "yes". We find it difficult to keep up with all charities pressing in our own particular neighborhood. When cornered, so to speak, how can we refuse, even though the amount is not large?"

Everyone understands that taxation has long made it impossible for the majority of us to contribute as much as we would like to. I think the best answer is the indefinite one, "I'll be glad to if I can, but I can't say definitely until I see what my balance is at the bank." Or if you know your funds are low merely to say, "I'm really sorry, but I can't at this time" and don't go into explanations.

Present For Wedding Attendants

Dear Mrs. Post: Will you please give me some suggestions as to what I might give my bridesmaids and maid of honor for taking part in my wedding? Is the maid of honor given a more expensive present than the one given the bridesmaids?

Answer: Usually the maid of honor is given a somewhat more valuable present than those given the bridesmaids. Generally the bride gives her attendants, gifts for their personal adornment or use, such as a pin, a clip, a bangle, a compact, a small purse, etc.

Dressing Aboard Ship

Dear Mrs. Post: My husband and I are going to Europe next month. We are traveling first class. We live very quietly and do not go to many social functions where formal dress is worn. Therefore, we would like to know if it is necessary to dress for dinner in the evening aboard ship.

Answer: Not at all. A certain number of passengers (especially the young who want to dance) do dress in evening clothes on the de luxe liners. But even on these, many others prefer not to change into evening clothes.

Amateur, Commercial Exhibitors Enter YW Annual Hobby Show

Reports from committee members at Thursday night's meeting indicated that the 1954 Hudson Valley Hobby Show, sponsored by the Kingston YWCA, will draw exhibitors from a wide area. The fifth annual show will be staged at the municipal auditorium opening Tuesday, May 11 at 7 p. m. and continuing for three nights until 10 p. m.

Mrs. Joseph D. Scholar, Jr. general chairman, reports, "sixteen amateur hobbyists, and five commercial exhibitors have contracted for the 10 by 12 foot booths." A number of others are being processed by committee members, leaving a limited number of booths still available. The YWCA office may be contacted by potential exhibitors, both amateur and commercial.

Tentative plans were announced by the decorations committee to carry out the nation-wide theme of the YWCA's Centennial observance. Booths constructed by husbands of YWCA members will again be in use this year as well as the accessory drapes made by members.

A special effort is being made by the committee to contact a number of hobbyists who have used the "do it yourself" idea in improvements to their homes or furnishings. These would be of special interest to men who constitute a good part of the audience on each of the three nights.

Advance tickets sales chairman, Mrs. John Glennon announced that tickets are available and would be distributed to members within the next week.

Sales Cart Articles Useful for Patients, Visitors to Hospital

The Sales Cart, started in January as another project of the Ladies' Auxiliary of the Benedictine Hospital, has proved to be a successful venture. It is primarily a convenience for the patients and their visiting guests.

Articles such as magazines, cigarettes, candies, notions and other sundries may be purchased from the cart as it is wheeled through the hospital, stopping at every room and ward. The Sales Cart is operated only by volunteers from the auxiliary who feel it is a privilege to give their services to the Benedictine Hospital in the afternoon and evening, the president reports.

The auxiliary is now making final plans for their annual Easter Ball, to be held at the Governor Clinton Hotel, Saturday, April 24, with dancing from 9 p. m. until 2 a. m.

A young wife had a pet dog of which she was extremely fond, but unfortunately one day the animal ran out in the street and was killed by a passing car. She was in tears that night when her husband came home and his efforts to comfort her were of no avail.

He—Darling, stop your crying and I'll buy you a new hat.

Through her tears the young wife burst out:

She—If you knew how much I miss him, you'd make it a fur coat.

Reade Tells Plans

story of the theatre building will be replaced with Georgian type windows, with black iron railings, he revealed.

The interior of the theatre will also be refurbished, carrying out the Colonial theme, Reade said. Major changes will be made in the lobby, where Roman brick flooring, "interesting" plantings, and a low desk-type ticket station will create an informal atmosphere, Reade said.

John McNamara, New York architect who designed the Reade Community Theatre at Saratoga and Hudson, prepared the plans for the changes to the local theatre.

The planned renovations will cost in excess of $100,000, Lewis Jones of the Central Business Men's Association told members of the Common Council when the plan was first announced on Tuesday.

Might Change Name

Reade told reporters on Saturday that he "is thinking about" changing the name of the Broadway Theatre to the Community Theatre. He emphasized that the final decision has not been made, and said he would welcome suggestions from local residents.

First step in the project will be the installation of complete air conditioning system, with modern compressors, Reade said. This contract has already been let to the Adams Engineering Company of New York city and the system should be ready for use this summer, he said.

All other contracts will be open for bids as soon as final plans and specifications are completed, Reade said, and as is the firm's policy local contractors will be welcomed to submit bids.

Reade said he hoped the contracts would be let by the end of May and that the project will be completed by September "at the latest."

The theatre's seating capacity of 1,750 will not be changed, he said. The stage equipment and facilities also will remain as at present, he said.

"Except for possibly a very few days, we expect to continue to operate throughout the entire construction project," Reade said.

Lounge With TV

Other items in the proposed renovation plan as outlined by Reade include the closing of the well at the rear of the upstairs balcony and furnishing a lounge with comfortable chairs and television facilities; installation of new seats throughout; additional improvements to the projection equipment including a "Super Scope" lens now on order; building of a small viewing room with approximately 14 "luxury seats" available upon reservation to clubs and individuals, or to be used during the daytime for mothers with small children as a "cry-room."

The Broadway was chosen for the project as its wide frontage lends itself to the Colonial type of treatment more than does the Kingston Theatre, Reade said.

Cancer Victim

vowed she would walk down the aisle unaided, and that she did.

Although she had practiced only six days with her artificial leg, she laid aside her crutches a few minutes before the ceremony.

Plucky Susan declared:

1,000 Persons Attend

Some 1,000 persons crowded inside and around the quaint little country church.

There was an audible gasp from the assemblage as Susan entered the church without crutches. She walked firmly down the aisle—with but a slight limp—on the arm of her father, H. Dale Ball.

"I felt wonderful and very happy," said Susan, and her husband commented:

After the wedding rites, the 21-year-old actress stood in the church vestibule for half an hour receiving each of the 200 guests. Then, for photographers.

Long, 26, first saw his bride in a movie while he was in the army in Japan four years ago. He was very much impressed. Later, when out of uniform and back at Universal-International Studios to resume his acting career, he saw the dark beauty sitting in the commissary. He introduced himself. She was on crutches at the time. She told him then that she had a cancer of the leg.

11 Cities Affected

Beacon 51 (100); Glen Cove 46 (100); Hudson 38 (73) and Rye 63 (99).

City	Tax Power	Borrowing Power
Beacon	$367,927	$1,287,745
Rye	580,932	2,033,262

School District	Taxing Power	Borrowing Power
Beacon CSD	$282,807	$ 942,692
Rye CSD	384,818	1,280,285
Rye 1	53,818	134,546

The equalization rates represent ratios between estimates on the value of real property by local assessors on the one hand and by the state board on the other. They are a means of arriving at what the state computes the full value to be.

The rates are expressed in percentages. These percentages are the state board's estimate of how much of the full value local assessors are giving to all the property in the city. As the equalization rate goes down, the state's estimate of the full value goes up.

The state constitution provides that the state's full valuation figures be used to compute the dollars-and-cents limit on real estate taxes and local debt—except where the local charter provides otherwise. Therefore a drop in equalization rates gives a locality with no specific charter provision the power to raise its tax bills and its debt.

But constitutional tax and debt limits are based on a five-year average of the full valuation of taxable property. Therefore one fifth of the total increases in taxing and borrowing power will be available to the localities each year, for five years.

The changes will not affect state aid for school systems or other programs based fully or in part on real property valuations. A 1954 law freezes the old rates for those purposes pending a study of what effect the changes would have on aid programs.

Today's changes brought to 53 the number of localities that have received new rates. In all, approximately 1,600 cities, towns and villages are to receive new rates this year. A hearing on the 11 new rates will be held here May 4.

The state's revised rates are based upon average market values of property on July 1, 1949, and Jan. 1, 1952. They bring local assessors' figures up to date to account for the post-war inflation of property values.

Doctor Problem

their examination reports during trial. They contended, in effect, that their reports were not treated as expert testimony, and were ridiculed in some cases.

Since the resignations, local police have been unable to obtain physicians on call, and the latest example of this was their failure to obtain one Saturday night.

Pedros P. George, 26, of 306 Clinton avenue, was arrested at 7:55 p. m., on the charge by Officer Hydrect Armstrong on Wall near North Front street. The defendant was held until 10:25 p. m., at police headquarters as attempts were made to obtain a doctor.

City Judge Raymond J. Mino today put the case over to April 23. George is under $45 bail.

To Ask for Cash

Seoul, April 12 (AP)—South Korea's defense minister said today his government will soon ask the United States for 160 million dollars more a year in military aid. The minister, Adm. Sohn Won Il, said most of the previously allotted Foreign Operations Administration (FOA) funds should go to civil reconstruction instead of defense.

Collision Reported

Carl Johnson, RD No. 3, Box 80, Kingston, reported to police headquarters at 10:14 p. m., Sunday that his car and another were involved in a collision at Washington avenue and North Front street, and the other driver continued on without identifying himself.

Ulster Unemployment Drops

product workers, compared to 13 per cent in February. Other drops noted were in transportation, accounting for eight per cent of the total in February and five per cent in March.

Unemployed workers in apparel and related trades accounted for 15 per cent of the March total benefit payments, as against 12 per cent in February. This does not mean that there was a reduction in employment in the apparel trades, however, as the total number of unemployed was less in March than in February.

The balance of the March unemployment benefit recipients, by industry of last employment was distributed among metal products (18%), resort (11%), retail and wholesale trade (10%) and a scattering from all other industry.

During the month of March, the local employment service office placed 294 persons in jobs, including 136 women and 158 men. Of the men, 64 were veterans.

Anthony C. Hart, local employment security manager, announced today that the Kingston office of the Division of Employment is making plans for placing New York city high school boys on county farms again this year, through its Farm Cadet program.

Many of the boys available are from agricultural high schools and are planning to make farming their life work. They are carefully interviewed and selected by both the agencies sponsoring the program, the Division of Employment and the New York city board of education.

"Only those with genuine interest in farming are sent for employment," Hart said.

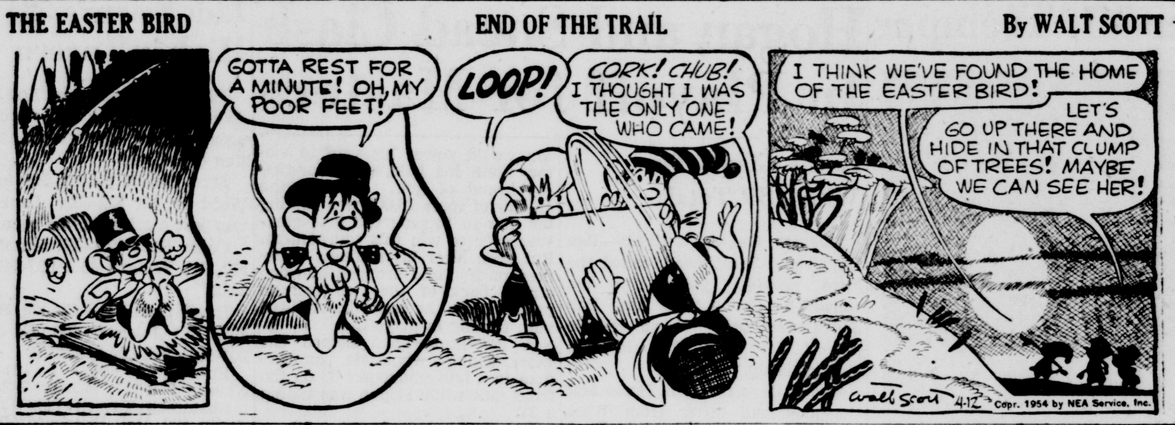

Farmers interested in the cadet program or desiring additional information may contact Donald R. Munn, farm placement representative, at the Division of Employment office, 18 Pine Grove avenue, Kingston.

The boys can start work about the middle of June and remain until school opens in September. Hart pointed out that, orders placed now will result in better selection, since there is considerable demand for these boys.

Last year 50 boys were employed in Ulster county under the Farm Cadet program. It is expected that Paul O'Leary, who had been cadet supervisor for the past two seasons, will return this year. The supervisor consults with the farmer where the boy is placed, looks after the boy's welfare and reports progress to school authorities. Since school credit is given for satisfactory work, the boys are anxious to do a good job, it was pointed out.

NEW PALTZ NEWS

Mayor Submits Annual Budget

New Paltz, April 12—Mayor Robert Reid presented his budget at the village board meeting, and appointed committees for the coming year. Village officers for the year also were elected by the board.

The mayor's budget includes a sinking fund of $1,000 to be held in reserve for any automotive machinery that may be needed at a later date, and a sinking fund of $2,000 in the sewer department. The budget calls for no raise in the tax rate. The total assessed valuation of the village is $2,178,304.

All village officers were re-elected as follows: Clerk, Wilbur Fredenburgh; treasurer, Frank Slack; superintendent of public works, Al Sutherland; attorney, David Corwin; historian, Kenneth Hasbrouck. The Huguenot National Bank was designated the official bank depository.

Mayor Reid made the following committee appointments among the trustees for the year: Light and Dump, Henry DuBois and Marinus Petersen; Water and Municipal Building, Mr. Petersen and Mr. DuBois; Street and Police Department, Robert Jansen and Kelly Campbell; Sewers and Storm Sewers, Mr. Campbell and Mr. Jansen; Financial, Mr. DuBois and Mr. Campbell. Mr. Jansen was appointed acting mayor.

Nicholas Kuerstine and Joseph Thompson were appointed part-time policemen.

The board decided to purchase a new addressograph machine at the cost of $221.25 to replace the present one which is beyond repair. The money used for it will be taken from Water Funds since the machine is used primarily for water bills.

Daylight Saving Time was adopted for the village which will start at 2 a. m. April 25 and end at 2 a. m. September 26.

Town Recreation Committee Meets

New Paltz, April 12—There was a meeting of the Town Recreation Committee, headed by George Ackert, at the High School Monday night, April 5. Plans are being made to extend the present recreation program for the summer months. Funds are supplied by town, village and state youth commission.

It is hoped that activities at the High School for all children above four years of age will be in this program, which would be from 10 a. m. to 4 p. m., Monday through Friday for six weeks. All activities would be held at the High School except swimming, which will be one afternoon a week at which time there will be no other activities.

It was said there is a definite need for a competent, paid, full-time supervisor or director. Anyone interested in this position should get in touch with Frank Bugar, principal of the New Paltz High School. A tentative salary of $50 a week was approved with provision for two assistants at a smaller salary. Applications are to be in before next Tuesday, April 13.

The summer program will extend from July 5 to August 25.

Church News

New Paltz, April 12—Plans are being made for an Easter sunrise service for the Junior Intermediate Youth Fellowship members and friends Easter Sunday morning on the Minnewaska Trail. Breakfast will be served at the church following the service.

A group of members of the New Paltz Methodist Church have been meeting each Wednesday afternoon during Lent to study the Old Testament book of Jeremiah. The last meeting will be held Wednesday at 1:30 p. m. The teacher is the Rev. Willet Porter.

Little League Officials Meeting

New Paltz, April 10—A meeting of the Little League officials was held Wednesday evening at the home of Lee Keator, president. The season will open June 1. There will be two rounds of play, a total of 30 games with the winners of each round playing for the championship. The league will run on the same basis as last year. Pres. Keator asked the cooperation of the managers to help teach the boys sportsmanship in refraining from razzing the opposing teams. He would appreciate it very much if fans would also refrain from this practice.

All injuries must be reported to the team manager at once and he is to follow up by getting a report from the doctor.

The managers for the year are as follows: Giants, Warren McDowell; Yankees, Gregory Rheude; Red Sox, George Ackert; Cards, Russell Davis; Dodgers, George Wager; and Indians, Lee Keator.

Polio Inoculation Begins April 27

Children in the New Paltz area will be among the 5,000 children in New York state who will have the opportunity to take part in a country-wide testing program of a vaccine which is expected to produce an immunity to poliomyelitis.

Within the next four weeks, 20 counties in the state and 44 states across the nation will begin a series of injections with the newly developed vaccine. In this area, the Campus Elementary school will be the center for this program which is scheduled to begin April 27.

Children who may be inoculated are those in grades one, two and three. It is at that age level that the attack rate is highest. There will only be enough vaccine available to treat that group.

The vaccine has been produced by Dr. Jonas Salk and is already in use. It is said to produce an immunity to polio by building up in the body protective substances called antibodies which fight the polio virus. The safety of the injection is assured and no untoward symptoms have appeared in those who have been inoculated. Each lot of serum is run through a series of three tests. If any impurities appear after the tests, the lot is disposed of.

One half of the children taking part in the program will receive the vaccine while the other half will receive a harmless control substance. The series of injections will cover a five week span and will be given in this order: Each child will receive three injections, the second being given one week after the first, and the third four weeks after the second. Special arrangements will be made for those who miss the second or third injections. However, failure to receive the first injection on schedule drops the child from the test.

Participation in the program is voluntary. No child will be included except by written request of parent or guardian. Further information about when and where the program will begin will be sent to parents through the schools in a few days.

Parents or guardians of children in grades one, two and three will receive permission slips to be filled out and returned to the school. They must return these slips promptly if they wish their children to be included in this program.

government decree Saturday incorporating into Viet Nam's 300,000-man national army the 32,000 tough fighting men who formerly paid allegiance to the Cao Dai and Hoa Hao religious sects and the Binh Xuyen party.

The cabinet — Acting Defense Minister Le Thang and Gen. Nguyen Van Hinh—chief of the general staff are the other members—the cabinet also froze approximately 100,000 Vietnamese volunteers now on active duty with the young nation's armed forces. They were ordered to continue serving until further orders.

Attack Is Smashed

As the new Saigon government moved for widespread popular participation in the fight against the Vietminh, the French high command in Hanoi reported its troops at besieged Dien Bein Phu had smashed back another big rebel attack on the eastern fringes of the fortress.

The French said the rebels suffered "heavy losses" as the defenders charged repeatedly with bayonets, but admitted French losses were "severe."

The immediate objective of the rampaging Vietminh assault appeared again to be a 1,200 foot-high hill overlooking the French fortress and only five-eights of a mile from its center. The French seized the strategic height from the rebels in a surprise offensive Saturday and held it against four earlier big Vietminh attacks.

The Vietminh, armed with submachineguns, rifles, pistols, grenades and plastic containers of high explosives, charged up the jungle-covered hill into the heavy fire of French troops firmly holding a long series of winding trenches.

City Hall Picketed

New York, April 12 (AP)—Long, winding lines of 1,500 municipal employes surrounded city hall today in a mass picketing demonstration for higher pay. About 500 uniformed firemen, and hundreds of city department chauffeurs in their uniforms, were in the throng.

Reade Tells Plans

story of the theatre building will be replaced with Georgian type windows, with black iron railings, he revealed.

The interior of the theatre will also be refurbished, carrying out the Colonial theme, Reade said. Major changes will be made in the lobby, where Roman brick flooring, "interesting" plantings, and a low desk-type ticket station will create an informal atmosphere, Reade said.

John McNamara, New York architect who designed the Reade Community Theatre at Saratoga and Hudson, prepared the plans for the changes to the local theatre.

The planned renovations will cost in excess of $100,000, Lewis Jones of the Central Business Men's Association told members of the Common Council when the plan was first announced on Tuesday.

Might Change Name

Reade told reporters on Saturday that he "is thinking about" changing the name of the Broadway Theatre to the Community Theatre. He emphasized that the final decision has not been made, and said he would welcome suggestions from local residents.

First step in the project will be the installation of complete air conditioning system, with modern compressors, Reade said. This contract nas already been let to the Adams Engineering Company of New York city and the system should be ready for use this summer, he said.

All other contracts will be open for bids as soon as final plans and specifications are completed, Reade said, and as is the firm's policy local contractors will be welcomed to submit bids.

Reade said he hoped the contracts would be let by the end of May and that the project will be completed by September "at the latest."

The theatre's seating capacity of 1,750 will not be changed, he said. The stage equipment and facilities also will remain as at present, he said.

"Except for possibly a very few days, we expect to continue to operate throughout the entire construction project," Reade said.

Lounge With TV

Other items in the proposed renovation plan as outlined by Reade include the closing of the well at the rear of the upstairs balcony and furnishing a lounge with comfortable chairs and television facilities; installation of new seats throughout; additional improvements to the projection equipment including a "Super Scope" lens now on order; building of a small viewing room with approximately 14 "luxury seats" available upon reservation to clubs and individuals, or to be used during the daytime for mothers with small children as a "cry-room."

The Broadway was chosen for the project as its wide frontage lends itself to the Colonial type of treatment more than does the Kingston Theatre, Reade said.

Cancer Victim

vowed she would walk down the aisle unaided, and that she did.

Although she had practiced only six days with her artificial leg, she laid aside her crutches a few minutes before the ceremony.

Plucky Susan declared:

"I always knew I would get married without crutches, although no one else did."

1,000 Persons Attend

Some 1,000 persons crowded inside and around the quaint little country church.

There was an audible gasp from the assemblage as Susan entered the church without crutches. She walked firmly down the aisle—with but a slight limp—on the arm of her father, H. Dale Ball.

"I felt wonderful and very happy," said Susan, and her husband commented:

"She was magnificent."

After the wedding rites, the 21-year-old actress stood in the church vestibule for half an hour receiving each of the 200 guests. Then, for photographers.

Long, 26, first saw his bride in a movie while he was in the army in Japan four years ago. He was very much impressed. Later, when out of uniform and back at Universal-International Studios to resume his acting career, he saw the dark beauty sitting in the commissary. He introduced himself. She was on crutches at the time. She told him then that she had a cancer of the leg.

11 Cities Affected

from the old rate. The revised rates include (old rates in parentheses):

Beacon 51 (100); Glen Cove 46 (100); Hudson 38 (73) and Rye 63 (99).

City	Tax Power	Borrowing Power
Beacon	$367,927	$1,287,745
Rye	580,932	2,033,262

School District	Taxing Power	Borrowing Power
Beacon CSD	$282,807	$ 942,692
Rye CSD	384,818	1,280,285
Rye 1	53,818	134,546

The equalization rates represent ratios between estimates on the value of real property by local assessors on the one hand and by the state board on the other. They are a means of arriving at what the state computes the full value to be.

The rates are expressed in percentages. These percentages are the state board's estimate of how much of the full value local assessors are giving to all the property in the city. As the equalization rate goes down, the state's estimate of the full value goes up.

The state constitution provides that the state's full valuation figures be used to compute the dollars-and-cents limit on real estate taxes and local debt—except where the local charter provides otherwise. Therefore a drop in equalization rates gives a locality with no specific charter provision the power to raise its tax bills and its debt.

But constitutional tax and debt limits are based on a five-year average of the full valuation of taxable property. Therefore one fifth of the total increases in taxing and borrowing power will be available to the localities each year, for five years.

The changes will not affect state aid for school systems or other programs based fully or in part on real property valuations. A 1954 law freezes the old rates for those purposes pending a study of what effect the changes would have on aid programs.

Today's changes brought to 53 the number of localities that have received new rates. In all, approximately 1,600 cities, towns and villages are to receive new rates this year. A hearing on the 11 new rates will be held here May 4.

The state's revised rates are based upon average market values of property on July 1, 1949, and Jan. 1, 1952. They bring local assessors' figures up to date to account for the post-war inflation of property values.

Doctor Problem

their examination reports during trial. They contended, in effect, that their reports were not treated as expert testimony, and were ridiculed in some cases.

Since the resignations, local police have been unable to obtain physicians on call, and the latest example of this was their failure to obtain one Saturday night.

Pedros P. George, 26, of 306 Clinton avenue, was arrested at 7:55 p. m., on the charge by Officer Hydrect Armstrong on Wall near North Front street. The defendant was held until 10:25 p. m., at police headquarters as attempts were made to obtain a doctor.

City Judge Raymond J. Mino today put the case over to April 23. George is under $45 bail.

To Ask for Cash

Seoul, April 12 (AP)—South Korea's defense minister said today his government will soon ask the United States for 160 million dollars more a year in military aid. The minister, Adm. Sohn Won Il, said most of the previously allotted Foreign Operations Administration (FOA) funds should go to civil reconstruction instead of defense.

Collision Reported

Carl Johnson, RD No. 3, Box 80, Kingston, reported to police headquarters at 10:14 p. m., Sunday that his car and another were involved in a collision at Washington avenue and North Front street, and the other driver continued on without identifying himself.

Ulster Unemployment Drops

product workers, compared to 13 per cent in February. Other drops noted were in transportation, accounting for eight per cent of the total in February and five per cent in March.

Unemployed workers in apparel and related trades accounted for 15 per cent of the March total benefit payments, as against 12 per cent in February. This does not mean that there was a reduction in employment in the apparel trades, however, as the total number of unemployed was less in March than in February.

The balance of the March unemployment benefit recipients, by industry of last employment was distributed among metal products (18%), resort (11%), retail and wholesale trade (10%) and a scattering from all other industry.

During the month of March, the local employment service office placed 294 persons in jobs, including 136 women and 158 men. Of the men, 64 were veterans.

Anthony C. Hart, local employment security manager, announced today that the Kingston office of the Division of Employment is making plans for placing New York city high school boys on county farms again this year, through its Farm Cadet program.

Many of the boys available are from agricultural high schools and are planning to make farming their life work. They are carefully interviewed and selected by both the agencies sponsoring the program, the Division of Employment and the New York city board of education.

"Only those with genuine interest in farming are sent for employment," Hart said.

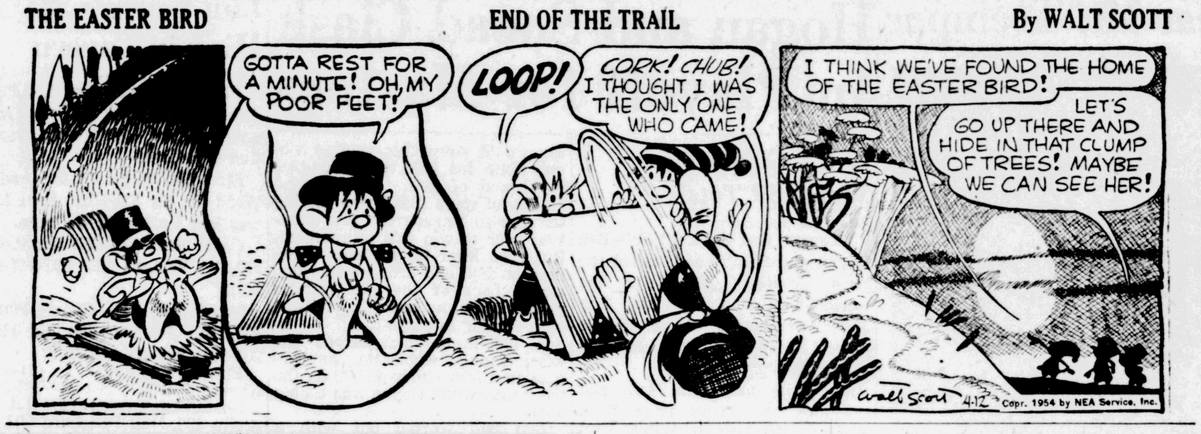

Farmers interested in the cadet program or desiring additional information may contact Donald R. Munn, farm placement representative, at the Division of Employment office, 18 Pine Grove avenue, Kingston.

The boys can start work about the middle of June and remain until school opens in September. Hart pointed out that, orders placed now will result in better selection, since there is considerable demand for these boys.

Last year 50 boys were employed in Ulster county under the Farm Cadet program. It is expected that Paul O'Leary, who had been cadet supervisor for the past two seasons, will return this year. The supervisor consults with the farmer where the boy is placed, looks after the boy's welfare and reports progress to school authorities. Since school credit is given for satisfactory work, the boys are anxious to do a good job, it was pointed out.

New York, April 12 (AP)—Long, winding lines of 1,500 municipal employes surrounded city hall today in a mass picketing demonstration for higher pay. The outpouring of workers, many of them carrying placards, came as the city's Board of Estimate launched three days of hearings on the 1954-55 budget. About 500 uniformed firemen, and hundreds of city department chauffeurs in their uniforms, were in the throng.

Opening Day Trout Scene Near Mt. Tremper

EVERYBODY SHOWED UP for the opening of the 1954 trout season Saturday, except the trout in sufficient number to please the huge army of anglers who invaded Ulster county streams.

There were scattered reports of creel limits here and there, with a better than average number for the Schoharie, but by and large the Izaak Waltons experienced the traditional fishermen's luck.

Streams were clear for the most part, but very cold and what Ray Tillson describes as "fly water" conditions.

Bill Fitzgerald, the basketball playing son of Gordon Fitzgerald, was one of the earliest to bag a creel limit, early Saturday morning at Phoenicia.

Tillson reported George Caddy of Kingston bagged a 5-pound Brownie in the main stream of the Esopus. Emerson Mayes, the Lake Katrine Rod and Gun Club expert, came up with an 18-inch Rainbow in the same general area.

Record Pressure

Fishing pressure was reported the heaviest in history with Fishermen literally shoulder to shoulder in most of the favorite trout habitats. Women anglers also showed up in record numbers.

Tillson said some anglers reported good luck with spinning outfits but it was the old story of being at the right place at the right time.

Sunday's rains contrived to spoil the anticipated long weekend for the fishermen after Saturday's finest opening day in several years.

Reports from Ashokan reservoir were not too encouraging. The catches on the Schoharie led Tillson to remark, "I suppose they'll all be flocking to the Schoharie this week."

It was past midnight and Andy Murphy, George McElroy and Jack Gilligan were polishing off huge steaks at Jake's Grill. In celebration of the successful conclusion of the Kingston basketball tournament, of course.

Murphy, who carries about 265 pounds with considerable dignity, was both carnivorous and gregarious. A hot meat ball sandwich, then a cold turkey, a couple cups of coffee and then a side order of turkey . . . "for the missus."

The fabulous Johnny Cottrill and the Pine Plains Bombardiers had just whipped Haber's Grill, 77-73, in a bruising battle and Cottrill had carried off the MVP award at the municipal auditorium.

"You couldn't have plotted the tournament any better if you used a slide rule," an observer pointed out.

"It came out just as we had hoped, not out loud, of course," Murphy volunteered. "I think everybody was pulling for a Haber-Bombardier finals but we were scared that maybe Harry's Angels or Sickler's Delivery might upset the applecart."

"They came perilously close," the observer suggested.

"They did all that," Murphy went on, while Gilligan and McElroy, no amateur trenchermen in their own right, marvelled at the man's ability to dispose of huge quantities of foodstuffs.

The man suggested that Murphy and McElroy deserved considerable credit for staging the successful tournament. This brought a quick offer of a free beer to the observer who politely declined, pointing out that his opinion was motivated only by the facts. Just the facts, man, that's all.

"For a time we wondered if anybody knew about our tournament," McElroy said, "but the press and radio did a nice job and the crowds got larger as the finals approached." It was a financial and artistic success, bringing to Kingston the best basketball talent of the district.

Mr. and Mrs. Len Sickler were seated at another table just across the way.

"Wonder why they all rooted against us?" Len the staunch New York Giant rooter, inquired with a pained look. Meaning Sickler's Delivery with the Siena collegians.

"They always pick on the pros," the man tried to comfort him. "Who else but Haber's Grill would be the sentimental favorites for the tournament?"

• Flotsam and Jetsam:

Referee Al Gruner was beside himself at halftime of that consolation brawl between Otisville and Poughkeepsie MacAuleys. "If you call them tight half of the crowd is on you," he said. "If you let them play too much, the other half is on you. A guy just can't win." The game was a throwback to the Neanderthal league. The refs called 35 fouls and four technicals and banished two Otisville players. Dick Wilbur, the flashy high school cager who can't decide between Fordham and Manhattan, was guilty of four charging violations. Dick Roda, Otisville center, suffered the inglorious fate of blowing 10 straight chances from the foul line. Dick Bezemer came back a long way in that heart-throbbing finale between Haber's and Pine Plains. The big men had pushed him around in early games but he fought like a demon off the boards when the chips were down .Fans saw a rare situation in the semi-finals. Bill Haber had five free throw tries on one play. We repeat FIVE chances. It came about when Bing Van Etten and Whitey Myers called a multiple foul on a Harry's Angel offender. Simultaneously there was a technical against the Angels. That gave Haber a pair of one-and-one situations and the technical. That adds up to five. He was hotter than a pistol from the foul line during the whole tournament. But in this predicament, you know what happened? Yep, he missed four of them. It was a terrific basketball show and congratulations to Andy Murphy and George McElroy. A big fellow who did a big job that Murphpy fellow. And McElroy stayed right with him all the way. Except, of course, in the steak-meatball-turkey department. Then the man is in a class by himself.

Hogan and Snead Clash In Playoff for Masters

Golf's Giants Tie With 289 Totals

Augusta, Ga., April 12 (AP)—Ben Hogan and Sam Snead, called the "two greatest golfers in the world" by Grand Slam king Bob Jones, met today in an 18-hole playoff for the 1954 Masters championship.

The little man from Texas and the long ball hitter from West Virginia tied with 289 totals. That is one over par for the exacting 6,800-yard Augusta National course, and the highest score ever to earn first place in this prestige-packed tourney's 20-year history.

The winner will join colorful Jimmy Demaret as a three-time Masters' champion. A victory for Hogan would make him the only man ever to win two Masters in succession.

Patton Real Hero

Although neither of the rivals could break par in the final round—Snead had a 72 and Hogan a 75, the windup was perhaps the most exciting in Masters' history. Adding an extra touch of drama was the spectacular comeback after a poor third round by Billy Joe Patton, the happy-go-lucky amateur from Morgantown, N. C.

Patton, who tied for the lead the first day and moved out by himself the second, finished with a 71 for a 290 total. Dutch Harrison, with a 68, and Lloyd Mangrum, with a 69, tied for fourth. Next came Jack Burke, Jerry Barber and Bob Rosburg at 292.

It looked for a while as if Patton would power his way to victory with his bold, shoot-for-the-pin brand of golf. Most of the gallery of some 18,000 was rooting for him to become the first amateur ever to win this tournament. But even after his boldness backfired on him and dropped him one stroke back of the two veteran professionals, he could be credited with forcing in playoff.

A hole-in-one had helped the wisecracking wholesale lumberman to a four-under-par 32 on the front nine while Hogan was taking a 37.

Ben had started out with a three-stroke lead over Snead and a five-stroke margin over Billy Joe. With Snead sticking to par, Hogan thought Patton was the man he had to beat as he went off the 11th tee. He didn't know that Billy Joe had taken a disastrous seven and lost two strokes at No. 13 when his second shot was a wee bit short and landed in a creek.

Ben Admits Mistake

"I made my mistake on the 11th," Ben said afterwards. "I thought Patton was the one to play for. So I tried to hook a three iron shot onto the green, but it landed in the water and I took a double-bogey.

"If I had known he'd shot that seven I'd have played it safe."

The stroke or two Hogan might have saved there could have won for him. Snead by this time was sweating it out in the clubhouse, doubting that his over-par total would be good enough.

Don Kellett, general manager of the Baltimore Colts of the National Football League, played nine games as an infielder with the 1934 Boston Red Sox.

Hogan and Snead Clash In Playoff for Masters

Golf's Giants Tie With 289 Totals

Augusta, Ga., April 12 (AP)—Ben Hogan and Sam Snead, called the "two greatest golfers in the world" by Grand Slam king Bob Jones, met today in an 18-hole playoff for the 1954 Masters championship.

"If I had known he'd shot that seven I'd have played it safe."

The stroke or two Hogan might have saved there could have won for him. Snead by this time was sweating it out in the clubhouse, doubting that his over-par total would be good enough.

Canadiens Cop Second Victory

Detroit, April 12 (AP)—The Montreal Canadiens are alive—and definitely kicking—in the Stanley Cup hockey playoffs today because a pair of veterans refused to quit.

Center Kenny Mosdell, a scoreless failure through eight previous playoff games, fired a dramatic "sudden death" goal last night to give the Frenchmen a 1-0 victory over the Detroit Red Wings.

And Goalie Gerry McNeil, sidelined for exactly two months with a fractured ankle, returned to the nets and cooled the red-hot Red Kings with a remarkable display of goaltending.

Thus, Detroit holds a 3-2 lead in the best-of-seven series for the Stanley Cup — hockey's most prized possession—but the advantage is a slim one.

The sixth game of the series will be played in Montreal tomorrow night with the Canadiens favored to square matters and force a seventh and deciding game in Detroit on Friday.

Raible Powers 560 in Electrol

Charlie Raible scored the pocket with consistency for solo scores of 191, 190 and 179 to lead the Electrol League with a 560 slam.

Yanks Now Do It From Memory; Brooklyn Should Be Odds-on

THE SCOREBOARD

By HARRY GRAYSON
(NEA Sports Editor)

NEW YORK—(NEA)—The Yankees have worn out this and other handicappers with the fans around the American League.

No one else is doing anything about the world champions, so your agent, as a last desperate resort, contributes his share by picking them to win their sixth straight pennant.

This is done at the urgent request of Hank Greenberg and Al Lopez of the Indians, Frank Lane and Paul Richards of the White Sox and Joe Cronin and Lou Beaudreau of the Red Sox.

"If this doesn't put the Evil-Eye Finkle on the Yankees, nothing will," they shout, in unison, greatly relieved.

If the Dodgers don't make it three in a row in the National League, Commissioner Frick ought to call in Roy Cohn.

So without further warming up, let's stick out the red neck. After sitting up all night, I've come to only one conclusion. My kid in Japan could have done a better job.

Anyway, here's our prediction as to how the major league clubs will finish next Sept. 26:

AMERICAN LEAGUE	NATIONAL LEAGUE
New York Yankees	Brooklyn Dodgers
Boston Red Sox	Milwaukee Braves
Chicago White Sox	New York Giants
Cleveland Indians	St. Louis Cardinals
Washington Senators	Philadelphia Phillies
Philadelphia A's	Cincinnati Reds
Detroit Tigers	Pittsburgh Pirates
Baltimore Orioles	Chicago Cubs

THE YANKEES COULD be beaten, but the question is by whom. You'd like to pick against them—and this trip not just to be different—until you inspect the Red Sox, White Sox and Indians. The so-called Bombers now do it from memory. A half-dozen of them have grown richer than anybody but Casey Stengel, Frank Crosetti and Bill Dickey by helping to win five successive World Series.

THE INDIANS HAVE been together too long, are in a rut. They have become creatures of habit. They're like the horse in stall two. Turn him loose and he'll dash for stall two, except this time he is quite likely to be lassoed by the Bosox and Chisox and locked in stall four.

* * * *

IN THE NATIONAL LEAGUE, if the Brooks were a running horse, they'd be odds-on. The Superbas have altogether too much solid strength.

The other have too many ifs and weaknesses, are banking too heavily on promises and hope.

You get into minor league pitching too quickly when discussing the Braves and Warren Spahn is related to the Dodgers.

The baseball writers with the Giants should be given something with their food. They scribble as though the World Series were starting tomorrow with the Giants in it.

A club might win with a bucher who can hit on first base, but isn't likely to finish higher than fourth with butchers who can hit on first and third, which is the plight of the Cardinals.

* * * *

THE PHILLIES HAVE only the two big pitchers and but one accomplished infielder—Granny Hamner. Birdie Tebbetts wishes the Cincinnati pitchers could throw as hard as Ted Kluzsewski hits. If the Cubs couldn't win in the spring, what makes anybody believe they'll do any better afterward, so the Pirates may get out of the cellar without the aid of miners' hats.

It was a weird spring training season. Owners, managers and coaches have their chins in their hands.

Trade to Yankees Causes Old Pro Enos Slaughter To Break Down and Cry

New York, April 12 (AP)—Enos Slaughter, the balding old war horse of the St. Louis Cardinals, joined the New York Yankees today and if history repeats itself he will be just the insurance Casey Stengel needs to wrap up his sixth straight American League pennant.

The 38-year-old veteran of 16 years with the Redbirds was dealt to the Yanks yesterday less than 48 hours before the opening of the season for pitcher Mel Wright and three unnamed players who will be assigned to Card farm clubs.

Five times before, the Yanks have reached into the National League for players other clubs thought were washed up, and almost every time the deal turned out to the advantage of the world champions.

They obtained Johnny Mize from the New York Giants, Johnny Hopp from the Pittsburgh Pirates, Johnny Sain from the Boston Braves, Ewell Blackwell from the Cincinnati Reds and Johnny Schmitz from the Brooklyn Dodgers.

Mize retired this year after helping the Yanks for five seasons and Sain came back in answer to an emergency call from Stengel. He won 14 games last year, his fourth with the Yanks, then decided to call it a career before he returned to action.

Player Is Shocked

So with Mickey Mantle's bad leg still a question mark, and the Yanks floundering along under their worst spring training record since Stengel took over, Slaughter could be just the shot in the arm they need. He always has been a hustle guy.

For his part, Slaughter, who compiled a lifetime batting average of .305, was unhappy over the deal—so unhappy that he broke down and wept when he was told of the trade.

Enos Slaughter

"This is the biggest shock of my life," he said, tears streaming down his face, "something I never expected to happen. I've given my life to this organization and they let you go when they think you're getting old.

"What gets me is that they let you go before you're finished. I've still got some good years of baseball left in me. I'll give Casey Stengel 100 per cent just as I've given every ball club I've ever played for."

Card Manager Eddie Stanky was equally sad, saying:

"It's one of those tough things that managers have to face. If there's any bright side to this, a championship ball player is going to a championship club."

August A. Busch, Card president, said Slaughter was traded because of the team's youth movement.

Syracuse Ties NBA Series By Defeating Lakers, 65-63

Minneapolis, April 12 (AP)—Nervy Syracuse matches its comeback spirit against the fading genius of the Minneapolis Lakers tonight for the National Basketball Association championship.

The Nationals forced the NBA final playoffs into the decisive seventh game yesterday when Jim Neal, an obscure 6-11 reserve center, sank a 27-foot push shot in the last four seconds for a 65-63 victory. It squared the series at three games apiece.

The Lakers, heretofore supreme as money players, now find themselves with confidence shaken and fighting an inability to do things right in the tight spots.

Until this year, Minneapolis was unbeaten on the auditorium floor here in playoff games. It now has lost two in a row, both on long shots in the final seconds.

The Lakers still are slight favorites, largely on the theory that George Mikan, Jim Pollard and the other vets have the big game left.

It was 54-49 for Syracuse going into the fourth quarter but Jim Pollard locked the score at 63-63 on two free throws with two minutes left.

Nat Coach Al Cervi's strategy called for a pivot shot from Neal in the dying seconds. Neal was moved into the game hastily with a minute left and hadn't taken a shot up until then.

Screened off from the pivot, he had to shoot from the side. The one-hander was flawless.

Mikan, who has steered Minneapolis to championships in all but one year of the team's six-year existence, was untouchable in the first half when he scored 25 points. But he was checked with five in the last half.

Turner on TV

New York, April 12 (AP)—Eduardo Lausse, impressive in his first visit to the states, returns from Argentina tonight to box Jesse Turner of St. Louis at Brooklyn's Eastern Parkway. The bout will be televised by Dumont.

Bob Fatum Shoots 577 in Y League

Bob Fatum rolled 577 (243-202-132) and Charles Rhymer reeled off 213-190-166 for 569 to lead their respective divisions of the YMCA Mercantile League.

Runnerup Herb Williams fired 208-565 and Ed Auclair rolled 520 in the National loop. Other top shooters included John Rowland 509, Carmen Massa 478, Jack Raible 477, Sloat Rowland, Joe Amato and Bob Gordon, 470. Fuller Customs won the league title despite a three-game loss to the Cutters.

In the American division, Larry Jordan shot 210-559, Paul Jordan 555, Ernie Magnusson 547, John Rockefeller 201-550, Mike Boice 206-529, Lou Schafer 522, Sam Hayes 517, Harold McKenzie 517, Adam Thiel 500.

NEW YORK—(NEA)—The Yankees have worn out this and other handicappers with the fans around the American League.

No one else is doing anything about the world champions, so your agent, as a last desperate resort, contributes his share by picking them to win their sixth straight pennant.

This is done at the urgent request of Hank Greenberg and Al Lopez of the Indians, Frank Lane and Paul Richards of the White Sox and Joe Cronin and Lou Beaudreau of the Red Sox.

"If this doesn't put the Evil-Eye Finkle on the Yankees, nothing will," they shout, in unison, greatly relieved.

If the Dodgers don't make it three in a row in the National League, Commissioner Frick ought to call in Roy Cohn.

So without further warming up, let's stick out the red neck. After sitting up all night, I've come to only one conclusion. My kid in Japan could have done a better job.

Anyway, here's our prediction as to how the major league clubs will finish next Sept. 26:

AMERICAN LEAGUE	NATIONAL LEAGUE
New York Yankees	Brooklyn Dodgers
Boston Red Sox	Milwaukee Braves
Chicago White Sox	New York Giants
Cleveland Indians	St. Louis Cardinals
Washington Senators	Philadelphia Phillies
Philadelphia A's	Cincinnati Reds
Detroit Tigers	Pittsburgh Pirates
Baltimore Orioles	Chicago Cubs

THE YANKEES COULD be beaten, but the question is by whom. You'd like to pick against them—and this trip not just to be different—until you inspect the Red Sox, White Sox and Indians. The so-called Bombers now do it from memory. A half-dozen of them have grown richer than anybody but Casey Stengel, Frank Crosetti and Bill Dickey by helping to win five successive World Series.

THE INDIANS HAVE been together too long, are in a rut. They have become creatures of habit. They're like the horse in stall two. Turn him loose and he'll dash for stall two, except this time he is quite likely to be lassoed by the Bosox and Chisox and locked in stall four.

The Senators are sorely handicapped because they can't steal first base. The Athletics are the Yankees' junior varsity. The Tigers are waiting for some more kids like Harvey Kuenn to grow up. Baltimore inherits the Browns, last place and all.

* * * *

IN THE NATIONAL LEAGUE, if the Brooks were a running horse, they'd be odds-on. The Superbas have altogether too much solid strength.

The other have too many ifs and weaknesses, are banking too heavily on promises and hope.

You get into minor league pitching too quickly when discussing the Braves and Warren Spahn is related to the Dodgers.

The baseball writers with the Giants should be given something with their food. They scribble as though the World Series were starting tomorrow with the Giants in it.

A club might win with a bucher who can hit on first base, but isn't likely to finish higher than fourth with butchers who can hit on first and third, which is the plight of the Cardinals.

* * * *

THE PHILLIES HAVE only the two big pitchers and but one accomplished infielder—Granny Hamner. Birdie Tebbetts wishes the Cincinnati pitchers could throw as hard as Ted Kluzsewski hits. If the Cubs couldn't win in the spring, what makes anybody believe they'll do any better afterward, so the Pirates may get out of the cellar without the aid of miners' hats.

It was a weird spring training season. Owners, managers and coaches have their chins in their hands.

Trade to Yankees Causes Old Pro Enos Slaughter To Break Down and Cry

Enos Slaughter

New York, April 12 (AP)—Enos Slaughter, the balding old war horse of the St. Louis Cardinals, joined the New York Yankees today and if history repeats itself he will be just the insurance Casey Stengel needs to wrap up his sixth straight American League pennant.

The 38-year-old veteran of 16 years with the Redbirds was dealt to the Yanks yesterday less than 48 hours before the opening of the season for pitcher Mel Wright and three unnamed players who will be assigned to Card farm clubs.

Five times before, the Yanks have reached into the National League for players other clubs thought were washed up, and almost every time the deal turned out to the advantage of the world champions.

They obtained Johnny Mize from the New York Giants, Johnny Hopp from the Pittsburgh Pirates, Johnny Sain from the Boston Braves, Ewell Blackwell from the Cincinnati Reds and Johnny Schmitz from the Brooklyn Dodgers.

Mize retired this year after helping the Yanks for five seasons and Sain came back in answer to an emergency call from Stengel. He won 14 games last year, his fourth with the Yanks, then decided to call it a career before he returned to action.

Player Is Shocked

So with Mickey Mantle's bad leg still a question mark, and the Yanks floundering along under their worst spring training record since Stengel took over, Slaughter could be just the shot in the arm they need. He always has been a hustle guy.

For his part, Slaughter, who compiled a lifetime batting average of .305, was unhappy over the deal—so unhappy that he broke down and wept when he was told of the trade.

"This is the biggest shock of my life," he said, tears streaming down his face, "something I never expected to happen. I've given my life to this organization and they let you go when they think you're getting old.

"What gets me is that they let you go before you're finished. I've still got some good years of baseball left in me. I'll give Casey Stengel 100 per cent just as I've given every ball club I've ever played for."

Card Manager Eddie Stanky was equally sad, saying:

"It's one of those tough things that managers have to face. If there's any bright side to this, a championship ball player is going to a championship club."

August A. Busch, Card president, said Slaughter was traded because of the team's youth movement.

Syracuse Ties NBA Series By Defeating Lakers, 65-63

Minneapolis, April 12 (AP)—Nervy Syracuse matches its comeback spirit against the fading genius of the Minneapolis Lakers tonight for the National Basketball Association championship.

The Nationals forced the NBA final playoffs into the decisive seventh game yesterday when Jim Neal, an obscure 6-11 reserve center, sank a 27-foot push shot in the last four seconds for a 65-63 victory. It squared the series at three games apiece.

The Lakers, heretofore supreme as money players, now find themselves with confidence shaken and fighting an inability to do things right in the tight spots.

Until this year, Minneapolis was unbeaten on the auditorium floor here in playoff games. It now has lost two in a row, both on long shots in the final seconds.

The Lakers still are slight favorites, largely on the theory that George Mikan, Jim Pollard and the other vets have the big game left.

It was 54-49 for Syracuse going into the fourth quarter but Jim Pollard locked the score at 63-63 on two free throws with two minutes left.

Nat Coach Al Cervi's strategy called for a pivot shot from Neal in the dying seconds. Neal was moved into the game hastily with a minute left and hadn't taken a shot up until then.

Screened off from the pivot, he had to shoot from the side. The one-hander was flawless.

Mikan, who has steered Minneapolis to championships in all but one year of the team's six-year existence, was untouchable in the first half when he scored 25 points. But he was checked with five in the last half.

Turner on TV

New York, April 12 (AP)—Eduardo Lausse, impressive in his first visit to the states, returns from Argentina tonight to box Jesse Turner of St. Louis at Brooklyn's Eastern Parkway. The bout will be televised by Dumont.

Bob Fatum Shoots 577 in Y League

Bob Fatum rolled 577 (243-202-132) and Charles Rhymer reeled off 213-190-166 for 569 to lead their respective divisions of the YMCA Mercantile League.

Runnerup Herb Williams fired 208-565 and Ed Auclair rolled 520 in the National loop. Other top shooters included John Rowland 509, Carmen Massa 478, Jack Raible 477, Sloat Rowland, Joe Amato and Bob Gordon, 470. Fuller Customs won the league title despite a three-game loss to the Cutters.

In the American division, Larry Jordan shot 210-559, Paul Jordan 555, Ernie Magnusson 547, John Rockefeller 201-550, Mike Boice 206-529, Lou Schafer 522, Sam Hayes 517, Harold McKenzie 517, Adam Thiel 500.

ORDINANCE OF THE CITY OF KINGSTON, N. Y., ADOPTED APRIL 6, 1954, AMENDING A BOND AND CAPITAL NOTE ORDINANCE ADOPTED ON JANUARY 20, 1954, AUTHORIZING THE PURCHASE OF MACHINERY AND APPARATUS FOR HIGHWAY CONSTRUCTION AND MAINTENANCE AND APPROPRIATING $64,000 THEREFOR.

THE COMMON COUNCIL OF THE CITY OF KINGSTON, IN THE COUNTY OF ULSTER, NEW YORK, CONVENED IN REGULAR SESSION, HEREBY ORDAINS (by the favorable vote of not less than two-thirds of all the members of said Council) AS FOLLOWS:

Section 1. The title of the bond and capital note ordinance of the City of Kingston, N. Y., adopted by the Common Council on January 20, 1954, which authorized the purchase of machinery and apparatus for highway construction and maintenance, is hereby amended to read as follows:

"Bond and Capital Note Ordinance of the City of Kingston, N. Y., adopted January 20, 1954, authorizing the purchase of machinery and apparatus for highway construction and maintenance, appropriating $63,000 therefor, including the appropriation of $9,500 as a portion of the down payment, and authorizing the issuance of $2,000 capital notes to meet the portion of the down payment not provided by budgetary appropriation, and the issuance of $51,500 serial bonds, of the City, to finance the remainder of the appropriation."

Sec. 2. Sections 1, 2 and 3 (b) of the ordinance adopted by the Common Council on January 20, 1954, referred to in Section 1 of this amending ordinance, are hereby amended to read as follows:

"Section 1. Pursuant to recommendations of the Board of Public Works, there is hereby authorized the purchase of machinery and apparatus for highway construction and maintenance, in and for the City of Kingston, at a cost not to exceed $63,000, and the said amount of $63,000 is hereby appropriated therefor. The estimate of the maximum cost of said class of objects or purposes is $63,000, including preliminary costs and costs incidental thereto, and the plan of financing includes the sum of $9,500 from budgetary appropriation and the issuance of capital notes in the amount of $2,000, the said sum of $11,500 to provide at least 18% down payment required by law for the current year, and the issuance of serial bonds in the amount of $51,500 to finance the remainder of the appropriation and the levy of taxes upon all the taxable real property in the City in amounts sufficient to provide for the payment of the principal of and interest on the said bonds and notes.

"Section 2. Capital notes of the City in the principal amount of $2,000 and serial bonds of the City in the principal amount of $51,500 are hereby authorized to be issued pursuant to the provisions of the Local Finance Law, constituting Chapter 33-a of the Consolidated Laws of the State of New York, as amended.

"Section 3.

(b) Current funds are required to be provided prior to the issuance of the bonds authorized by this ordinance in an amount equal to at least eighteen per centum (18%) of the estimated cost and such current funds have already been provided in the amount of $9,500 by the appropriation in the budget for the fiscal year 1954 under the caption "Down Payment—Capital Improvements $32,000" and the balance will be provided by the issuance of the capital notes hereby authorized. The City Treasurer is hereby authorized and directed to withdraw the said sum of $9,500 from said budget appropriation and to set aside the proceeds of the sale of said $2,000 capital notes and to apply said budget appropriation and the proceeds of said capital notes to the improvement described in Section 1 hereof."

By WARREN PAGE
(Shooting Editor)

In one of our best duck-shooting states, to-wit California, a regulation has been proposed to outlaw the use of magnum shotguns, or at least limiting gauge size to 12, shot charge to an ounce and a quarter, which would doom the use of the 12-guage magnum, the 10 and 10-bore magnum over a good part of the Pacific Coastal Flyway.

This column will appear in print long after action has been taken on the proposed regulation, so won't affect its passage one way or another; but let's hope it may have some effect on other cart-before-the-horse rulings that may be pending.

I said California is one of the best duck-shooting states, and so indeed it must be, perhaps not in total or waterfowl shot, but in terms of active interest or per capita participation. That must be so, for with only about 70 per cent as many adult males in its population as there are in New York state, it annually coughs up four times as many dollars in supports of Ducks Unlimited, the non-profit organization which has done more than any other in keeping duck shooting alive as a sport for U. S. outdoorsmen.

Why, then, should anybody think anti-magnum rulings necessary for a waterfowling crowd like the Californians; or, for that matter, the gunners of any other state?

The answer lies in the shooters themselves, not in ballistics or legalities in any form. The reasons advocated for restrictive rulings of this sort are two; the wastage of ducks hit with a wounding pellet or two by over-ambitious sky-busters, and the rumination of shooting chances for standard-gun users by ultra-long range bombardment from the mangum shooters. Both are crimes, or at least major sins, in the eyes of proper sportsmen.

But are those sins a matter of gun or gunner? Is not putting a top on gun size something like legislating horsepower limits on cars in order to eliminate reckless drivers?

Restrictions on gauges or charges will not stop these abuses. The idiot who wastes birds and ruins the sport of others by stretching his gun barrels after impossible shots would still pull the same stunt even if he were legally restricted to the use of a .410.

It looks like everybody in the country is scared about something, says Old Man Hobbs. Those that aren't scared of Joe McCarthy are scared of Communists, while Republicans are afraid business may get worse and Democrats are afraid it won't.

Mossadegh Eats Big Dinner, Ending 'Fast'

Tehran, Iran, April 12 (AP)—A whopping dinner of boiled chicken, rice and vegetables has officially ended Mohammed Mossadegh's latest hunger strike. His prosecutor says the old man was fudging anyhow—sneaking cookies, chocolates and vitamin pills on the side.

The former premier, who is appealing his three-year solitary confinement sentence, launched his "fast unto death" Saturday because the court didn't let in enough spectators to suit him and the papers weren't reprinting in full the 600 pages of appeal he's now presenting.

On those counts, the strike scored a victory and a defeat for the former premier who was convicted of trying to overthrow the Shah.

Rules Are Relaxed

The court relaxed its rules on attendance and an audience of more than 50 showed up today. Previously only a dozen or so had been let in.

But Moussadegh could still be hungering for all the papers cared. Etelaat gave him five inches last night and Keyhan three—on the last page. He got about the same treatment this morning.

Mossadegh told the army appeal court last night: "Maybe in three—or at the most four—days I will die and you will be rid of me."

An idle threat, retorted Brig. Gen. Hossein Azemodeh.

Sparrows and the like form the largest family of birds in the world.

ORDINANCE OF THE CITY OF KINGSTON, N. Y., ADOPTED APRIL 6, 1954, AMENDING A BOND AND CAPITAL NOTE ORDINANCE ADOPTED ON JANUARY 20, 1954, AUTHORIZING THE PURCHASE OF MACHINERY AND APPARATUS FOR HIGHWAY CONSTRUCTION AND MAINTENANCE AND APPROPRIATING $64,000 THEREFOR.

THE COMMON COUNCIL OF THE CITY OF KINGSTON, IN THE COUNTY OF ULSTER, NEW YORK, CONVENED IN REGULAR SESSION, HEREBY ORDAINS (by the favorable vote of not less than two-thirds of all the members of said Council) AS FOLLOWS:

Section 1. The title of the bond and capital note ordinance of the City of Kingston, N. Y., adopted by the Common Council on January 20, 1954, which authorized the purchase of machinery and apparatus for highway construction and maintenance, is hereby amended to read as follows:

"Bond and Capital Note Ordinance of the City of Kingston, N. Y., adopted January 20, 1954 authorizing the purchase of machinery and apparatus for highway construction and maintenance, appropriating $63,000 therefor, including the appropriation of $9,500 as a portion of the down payment, and authorizing the issuance of $2,000 capital notes to meet the portion of the down payment not provided by budgetary appropriation, and the issuance of $51,500 serial bonds, of the City, to finance the remainder of the appropriation."

Sec. 2. Sections 1, 2 and 3 (b) of the ordinance adopted by the Common Council on January 20, 1954, referred to in Section 1 of this amending ordinance, are hereby amended to read as follows:

"Section 1. Pursuant to recommendations of the Board of Public Works, there is hereby authorized the purchase of machinery and apparatus for highway construction and maintenance, in and for the City of Kingston, at a cost not to exceed $63,000, and the said amount of $63,000 is hereby appropriated therefor. The estimate of the maximum cost of said class of objects or purposes is $63,000, including preliminary costs and costs incidental thereto, and the plan of financing includes the sum of $9,500 from budgetary appropriation and the issuance of capital notes in the amount of $2,000, the said sum of $11,500 to provide at least 18% down payment required by law for the current year, and the issuance of serial bonds in the amount of $51,500 to finance the remainder of the appropriation and the levy of taxes upon all the taxable real property in the City in amounts sufficient to provide for the payment of the principal of and interest on the said bonds and notes.

"Section 2. Capital notes of the City in the principal amount of $2,000 and serial bonds of the City in the principal amount of $51,500 are hereby authorized to be issued pursuant to the provisions of the Local Finance Law, constituting Chapter 33-a of the Consolidated Laws of the State of New York, as amended.

"Section 3.

(b) Current funds are required to be provided prior to the issuance of the bonds authorized by this ordinance in an amount equal to at least eighteen per centum (18%) of the estimated cost and such current funds have already been provided in the amount of $9,500 by the appropriation in the budget for the fiscal year 1954 under the caption "Down Payment—Capital Improvements $32,000" and the balance will be provided by the issuance of the capital notes hereby authorized. The City Treasurer is hereby authorized and directed to withdraw the said sum of $9,500 from said budget appropriation and to set aside the proceeds of the sale of said $2,000 capital notes and to apply said budget appropriation and the proceeds of said capital notes to the improvement described in Section 1 hereof."

By WARREN PAGE
(Shooting Editor)

In one of our best duck-shooting states, to-wit California, a regulation has been proposed to outlaw the use of magnum shotguns, or at least limiting gauge size to 12, shot charge to an ounce and a quarter, which would doom the use of the 12-guage magnum, the 10 and 10-bore magnum over a good part of the Pacific Coastal Flyway.

This column will appear in print long after action has been taken on the proposed regulation, so won't affect its passage one way or another; but let's hope it may have some effect on other cart-before-the-horse rulings that may be pending.

I said California is one of the best duck-shooting states, and so indeed it must be, perhaps not in total or waterfowl shot, but in terms of active interest or per capita participation. That must be so, for with only about 70 per cent as many adult males in its population as there are in New York state, it annually coughs up four times as many dollars in supports of Ducks Unlimited, the non-profit organization which has done more than any other in keeping duck shooting alive as a sport for U. S. outdoorsmen.

Why, then, should anybody think anti-magnum rulings necessary for a waterfowling crowd like the Californians; or, for that matter, the gunners of any other state?

The answer lies in the shooters themselves, not in ballistics or legalities in any form. The reasons advocated for restrictive rulings of this sort are two; the wastage of ducks hit with a wounding pellet or two by over-ambitious sky-busters, and the ruination of shooting chances for standard-gun users by ultra-long range bombardment from the mangum shooters. Both are crimes, or at least major sins, in the eyes of proper sportsmen.

But are those sins a matter of gun or gunner? Is not putting a top on gun size something like legislating horsepower limits on cars in order to eliminate reckless drivers?

Restrictions on gauges or charges will not stop these abuses. The idiot who wastes birds and ruins the sport of others by stretching his gun barrels after impossible shots would still pull the same stunt even if he were legally restricted to the use of a .410.

Mossadegh Eats Big Dinner, Ending 'Fast'

Tehran, Iran, April 12 (AP)—A whopping dinner of boiled chicken, rice and vegetables has officially ended Mohammed Mossadegh's latest hunger strike. His prosecutor says the old man was fudging anyhow—sneaking cookies, chocolates and vitamin pills on the side.

The former premier, who is appealing his three-year solitary confinement sentence, launched his "fast unto death" Saturday because the court didn't let in enough spectators to suit him and the papers weren't reprinting in full the 600 pages of appeal he's now presenting.

On those counts, the strike scored a victory and a defeat for the former premier who was convicted of trying to overthrow the Shah.

Rules Are Relaxed

The court relaxed its rules on attendance and an audience of more than 50 showed up today. Previously only a dozen or so had been let in.

But Moussadegh could still be hungering for all the papers cared. Etelaat gave him five inches last night and Keyhan three—on the last page. He got about the same treatment this morning.

Mossadegh told the army appeal court last night: "Maybe in three—or at the most four—days I will die and you will be rid of me."

An idle threat, retorted Brig. Gen. Hossein Azemodeh.
